Dr. Robert R. Freeman wears an expression of concern and interest as he talks with teachers at a departmental meeting. He attended the meetings to become acquainted with achievements and problems.

Moving into the new lab and getting all the equipment organized seemed an endless task. Lab assistant Kerry Deardorff checks to see that everything is in order before chemistry classes begin their first experiments using the new lab facilities.

Changeth, Yielding Place to New' —Tennyson

Never static in psychedelic 1968, MHS personnel, teaching methods, and facilities adapted and changed. Shining, up-to-date chemistry labs were installed providing science students with greater opportunities for learning. A renovated schedule of classes brought everyone to school at eight o'clock and completely eliminated eighth hour classes. Last June after 19 years as Superintendent of Schools, Dr. John J. Young retired. Dr. Robert R. Freeman took over the work and responsibilities of this position bringing fresh ideas and enthusiasm to Mishawaka School City. New courses were added to the curriculum of the English, Business, and Industrial Arts Departments. The clock in the tower, repaired by the Class of 1967, ticked off the passing minutes of the year. For the first time, seniors proudly displayed the traditional tower on oval class rings. In June they donned maroon caps and gowns rather than the traditional black ones. Despite the many changes the 1,933 MHS students' pride, enthusiasm, and eagerness to learn remained constant as the "old order changeth, yielding place to new."

Schedule Benefits Classes, Clubs

Mike Kovotch, S. J. Mitchell, and Ron Hawn look over the packaging problems they must try to solve in the new Industrial Design class.

For most students the new schedule provided the greatest change in their life at school. With no classes eighth hour, teachers had more time to give individual attention to the students who sought help, to prepare lesson plans, and to grade papers. Clubs and organizations found eighth hour an ideal time to meet. Club membership and participation increased as the problems of evening meetings, transportation, and late hours were eliminated. Afternoon pep sessions allowed students to cheer as long as they wished without losing valuable class time. The additional courses, as well as the revised schedule, made it necessary for seven new teachers to be hired. These teachers and the 574 freshmen brought to MHS not only unfamiliar faces but fresh, new ideas. The new courses added this year gave MHS students additional opportunities in learning. The girls in Miss Martha Miller's Office Practice class became adept at operating office machinery. Mr. Don Portolese challenged his Industrial Design class to design packages for light bulbs, facial tissues, and toothpaste. Miss Janet Eberle taught a writing course for sophomores.

Ruth Salyer and Linnie Shriver learn to use a dictaphone in the new office practice class. The class gave students an opportunity to learn to operate office machinery and to use their knowledge by serving as secretaries and receptionists in business offices.

This tower is Mishawaka High School's most honored symbol. For more than 35 years, senior rings have displayed the tower.

A mighty M-Man warns the peace-loving "flower people" from Washington High School that the Cavemen are going to fight.

New teachers Miss Rita Kunkle, Mr. Daniel Matty, Miss Cheryl Menzel, Mr. John Baughman, Mrs. Linda Kandra, Mr. William Niemann, Mrs. Judith Schneider, Mr. Floyd Zeiger, Mrs. Willa Cunningham, Miss Suzanne Kamm, Mr. Raymond Cosner, and Miss Barbara Artz get acquainted on MHS's first day. Several of these teachers have previously taught in Mishawaka schools.

Kathy Hilloert, Steve Watts, Randy Marks, Dove Nevel, and Penny Reynolds gather in the Principal's office to discuss problems concerning main floor lockers, seats at pep sessions, and the prom date. Mr. Thurston was always willing to listen to the students.

Seniors show off their class rings while signing and exchanging pictures. The oval-shaped gold rings have the tower emblem mounted on the dark red stone and the year 1968 around the stone.

The challenging curriculum requires AMHS students to study hard. Debby Werbrouck concentrates on a geography assignment.

Paint Brightens Hall, Auditorium

On returning to school in September, MHS students found many halls and classrooms freshly painted. During Christmas vacation 143 lockers were replaced by new ones, and the auditorium received badly needed paint.

The Miskodeed staff, under the direction of a new advisor, vacated room 219 and moved into the old Audio-Visual room. Alltolds were distributed to the entire student body, thus providing all the students with all the news. Both staffs however, took time from their busy schedules to brighten their room with paint donated by local community members.

Although all of the changes that have taken place this year have served to make Mishawaka High School a better place for its students, there were several problems that arose from the changes. Principal Walter E. Thurston was always willing to discuss these problems as was Superintendent Robert R. Freeman. A greater cooperation rose among the administration, faculty, and students in trying to solve these problems.

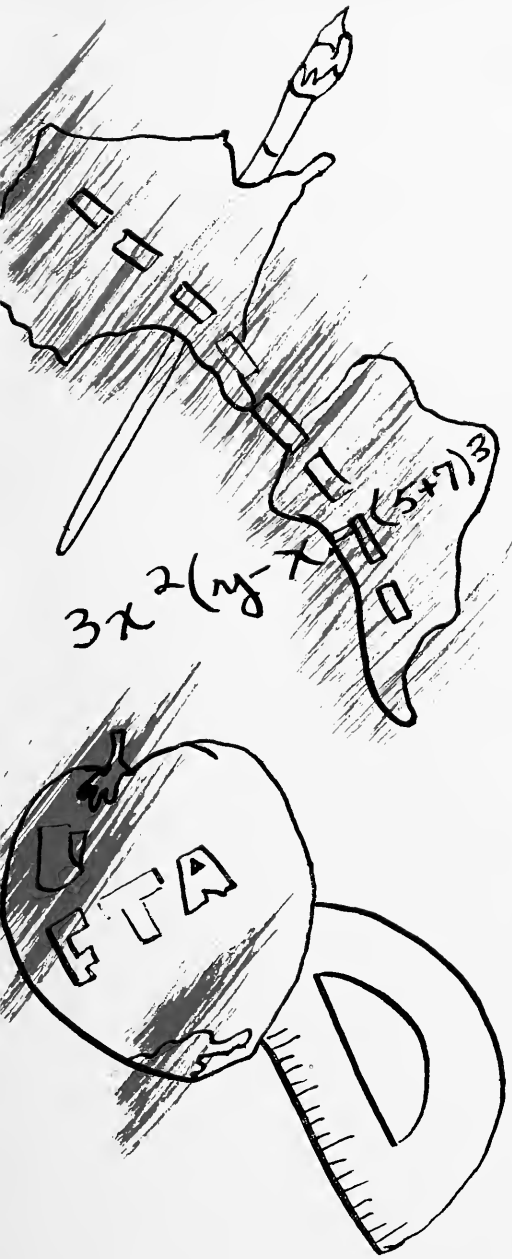

Misko staffers break for food while painting their room with Firefly yellow and Olive bronze paint donated by Mr. Lawrence Kelly.

The liveliness of the MHS band added excitement to games and parades. Tam Zimmerman sets the beat for the marching musicians.

School Life

An exhilarating wave of pride, spirit, and enthusiasm swept through Mishawaka High School this year. This added interest in school life spurred clubs to greater activity. The Share Project and the AFS drive gave MHS'ers an opportunity to share with others. School-wide dances were sponsored by Y-Teens and Student Council. The lively student body supported the teams with thunderous yells at pep sessions and at games. When not in school, MHS'ers gathered at impromptu parties, worked at part-time jobs, joined "Maggie's Mob" or "Brainerd's Bunch," and danced at the Meth on Friday nights. They slaved furiously on Homecoming floats, Christmas Vespers, class plays, the prom, and other club projects, and still made decent grades. 1968 was another "rush-rush" year, but it was also a year of excitement and achievement.

Practical jokers, Cindy Thielking, Leslie Creakbaum, and Barb Kolil assist Mother Nature by burying a senior friend's Sunbeam.

Their mischief ended as the city "leaf reaper" arrived and its operator quizzed the girls about the odd-shaped, oversized pile of leaves.

"Fired Up" MHS'ers burned a Marion knight in effigy, highlighting the traditional pre-season bonfire and rally.

The Homecoming Dance found young Mishawakans experimenting with new steps and rejuvenating the old as they danced to the beat of the Cambridge Five, a popular local band. The first social event sponsored by the Student Council proved to be an encouraging success.

Blazing Bonfire, Football Signal Fall

Leaving the beaches far behind, MHS'ers made the seasonal transition from casual vacationers to September students. Assignments replaced amusements as a nightly routine and the library became the "meeting place of the minds." Becoming involved in churches, clubs, and community activities, students generated their own brand of "Hoosier hysteria."

Traveling Cavekids recounted their experiences away from home and discussed life in Europe and Mexico. In late August they dusted off the welcome mat as the Malaysian exchange student, Suhaila Shamsuddin, arrived. Even before the academic year began, a bonfire sparked a unified blaze of school spirit. To free weekends for "goofing off," schedules were planned down to the wire. Indian summer found MHS'ers in the great outdoors participating in hayrides, camping trips, hootenannies, football games, and leaf raking.

Informal get-togethers combining studies with talk found us to be "refrigerator raiders" and insomniacs. We "lived for today," putting vocab cards, math problems and themes into tomorrow's worries.

Exchange Student Suhaila Shamsuddin received a football for her 17th birthday from her Sunday afternoon touch football teammates.

Rainy Homecoming Dampens Parade

Imagination plus engineering know-how, such as how to nail chicken wire both effectively and neatly, helped float planners contrive inventive themes for Homecoming '67. Staying up later as the days progressed, workers found themselves disregarding straggling hair and paint-blotched clothes to complete their projects. Prize-winning floats artistically displayed thousands of disguised paper napkins and kleenex.

For the first time in 21 years, rain temporarily put a damper on Homecoming activities. Yet, a rollicking race between MHS faculty members on tandems, and cycle-riding Michigan City "Red Devils" climaxed the frenzied pep assembly in the gym, protected spirit from the disheartening weather.

The wariness of threatening weather and an ominous Friday the 13th did not stop the Cavemen on the football field, either. Before 5,000 excited fans, Mishawaka clubbed the Devils 27-7, giving us added reason to celebrate. At the half, while the band and choir serenaded the candidates, Student Council President Dave Nevel crowned Senior Diana Roberts Homecoming Queen. Later she and her court presided over the dance where Cavekids rocked.

Tom Reith and Terry DeMaegd estimate the number of napkins needed to complete the gigantic '68 whale float to capture theme prize.

Nervous anticipation produced smiles as the junior attendant candidates promenaded hopefully before the student body.

Varsity cheerleaders scream in delight while the scoreboard clock runs out, posting another MHS Homecoming win.

Encouraged by "tunnelling" well-wishers, the Cavemen took the field for a promising second half—promising a ramp to victory.

Glenda and Kathy Young realize how "Rome wasn't built in a day" as they constructed a chariot for the Latin Club Float.

Beaming proudly, Diana Roberts begins her reign as 1967 Homecoming Queen while the band plays the Miss America theme.

Many MHS'ers devised original routes to class only to discover others had the same idea.

Freshmen were not the only ones to tour the school building. Some MHS visitors preferred to explore the maze of halls alone.

Linda Jewell checks parent consent forms for the football trip to Elkhart. Two MHS busloads backed the team in Caveman fashion.

After the game "victory" parties characterized by chatter and refreshments gave players and fans another chance to expend energy.

Clubs, Gossip Fill Compact Days

Eliminating eighth hour classes and hour and a half lunches made school days more compact. Getting up earlier troubled some late sleepers, but an afternoon activities period compensated for this inconvenience. Part-time job holders were thankful for this added "earning time" as were club officers and sponsors who found attendance much improved.

Braving the throngs, students scurried to and from classes, sometimes stopping to chat, giggle, or gripe. As in the past, MHS'ers found that lockers, the bus stop, and corner curbs were ideal for congregating. Discussion topics ranged from hair falls to motorcycles.

From the tranquil strains of a piano to the dynamic roar of the Indy 500 race cars, assemblies varied in tone from somber to side-splitting. On the lighter side, pep sessions measured MHS ingenuity and resourcefulness in skit writing and costuming and introduced visiting hippies and farmers. A Student body yell, sometimes like a sonic boom, replaced class competition yelling. Though hectic and scrambled at first, the event-filled days passed swiftly.

Veta Louise and Myrtle Mae discuss the possibility of placing Elwood in an institution.

Senior Play, "Harvey", Stars Pooka

Disproving the theory that "You can't make something from nothing," the senior class chose an invisible pooka as the central character in their play, Harvey. On November 10 and 11, Harvey and his companion, Elwood P. Dowd (Dan Nicolini) made their erratic and comical appearances and disappearances on the newly created two-set stage, a first for the MHS drama department.

To the dismay and horror of his sister Veta Louise (Kathy Hillaert) and his niece Myrtle Mae (Connie Kelly), Elwood proceeded about his business unaware that his six-foot white pooka remained unseen by the others. Veta tried to explain her brother's plight to the doctors at the sanitarium, but was committed as being crazy instead of her brother. Growing tension between the spasmodic Elwood and his overly-realistic yet protective relatives provided many confusing incidents.

Elwood's generous nature and warm heart influenced all who came in contact with him including a nurse, a society matron, and a cab driver. Harvey stirred activity wherever he went while he created emotional havoc and posed questions concerning everyone's sanity. Yet it made Elwood different.

Elwood P. Dowd (Dan Nicolini) helps Harvey out of his coat, just one of the scenes that baffles the rest of the cast.

Atomic Attack Sparks 'Alas, Babylon'

The words "nuclear attack" terrify the strongest of persons and numb their reflexes. In the Junior Class Play Alas, Babylon, such a war does occur, and the entire country is thrown into tumult. The action takes place in a small contemporary Florida community. The audience views the change of events from the stand-point of the Bragg family, Randy, Helen, Peyton, and Ben.

Upon receiving a coded telegram ending with the words "Alas, Babylon," the group pieces together a view of events to come. Led by Randy, who changes from a purposeless man to a conscientious leader, they try to believe their lives will not be altered. After the bombing, the Bragg Family, like the rest of the town, is stunned by the complete havoc. They discover that Fort Repose has been completely isolated from the outer world, that Denver is the Capital city, and the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, is the Chief Executive. Radio reports provide the only contact with the remaining world. Because of the lack of enough staples for existence, lawlessness erupts and the town is rampaged by looters and robbers. Life as well as currency has lost its value, yet the Braggs and the townspeople exist in this state for over a year. Death, the struggle for existence, and the thoughts for the future are skillfully combined.

Bodily beaten and covered with blood, Dr. Don Gunn manages to relate the details of his ambush and attack.

When Sam Hazzard's radio set fades out, the Braggs' hopes plummet. They believe isolation to be permanent.

A dreary dressing room waits for action while the costume committee assembled, tailored and spruced up the characters.

Activity Bustle Defrosts Wintertime

No basketball now! Footprints leading from the Merrifield Park courts show the obstacles winter sports enthusiasts had to endure.

Hot chocolate temporarily counteracts the cold weather and snow that plagued the cheerleaders in the late football season.

Magical combinations of tradition, beauty, and activity made winter sparkle for MHS'ers. Snow was not the only commodity that arrived in flurries, as they found themselves enveloped in a drift of activities. The reverence of Vespers combined the art and music departments to remind us of the spiritual meaning of the Christmas season. Carolling in the halls, SHARE-ing with needy families, and sending and receiving cards, were all a part of pre-vacation activities.

During the long-anticipated two weeks' vacation, MHS'ers revived favorite pastimes and invented new ways to lounge. Despite the frostiness of the air, outdoor sports led the list in popularity. Tobagganning, skindiving, and ice skating attracted many MHS'ers, and provided a welcome change of scene. In between those extra restful hours of sleep and unplanned goofing off sessions, many Cavekids earned spending money through part-time jobs, assisting shoppers, baby sitting, and taking inventory. Several of them ventured from Mishawaka to visit relatives, sightsee, or just bask in the glorious not-so-sunny South.

Numerous dances and parties highlighted the holiday season, ranging from the Meth and Coop to the formal gaiety of the Mistletoe Ball. New Year's Eve parties lasted longest of all despite the unwelcome, and unforgettable sub-zero weather.

Underwater lights, ropes, and breathing apparatus assisted wet-suited divers in their exploration of the depths of Klinger Lake.

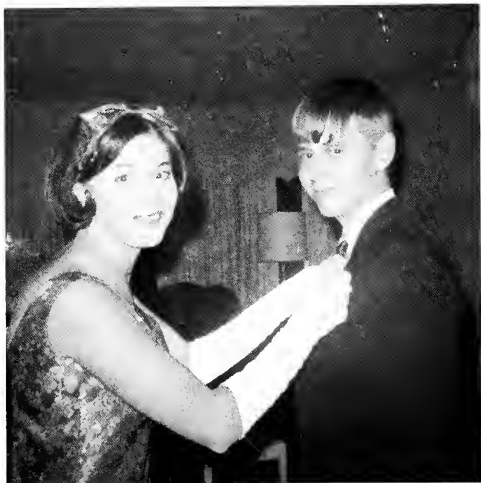

Disregarding the seasonal ice, Will Pooley and Mike Squibb found winter vacation a perfect time for skin diving.

Eiffel Tower, Cafe Highlight Paris Prom

With proper formality, Cheryl Tagliaferri adjusts Bob Cannon's boutonniere. Flowers and finery easily identified Prom couples.

Putting aside their textbooks, MHS juniors applied geometric and artistic skills as they designed and created a Parisian street scene for the Junior-Senior Prom, "Evening In Paris." Multicolored spotlights and a cheese-cloth ceiling projecting a cloud effect brightened the scene. Dominating the almost unrecognizable gym was a two-story model Eiffel Tower, surrounded by murals, flowers, and shops. A simulated bandshell in the park set a musical stage for listening and dancing.

Frenzied last-minute preparation involved the students, parents, and community. After rushes from florists to hairstylists, couples drifted to the punch parties to gather and chat with friends. Upon arriving in "Paris" the sidewalk cafe became a favorite spot for relaxing. Other couples chose to pause at the fountain, toss a penny, and make a wish. Leaving the tranquil formality of the dance, corsaged and boutonniere couples dined and breakfasted before returning home to snatch scant hours of sleep.

With formals all but forgotten, prom couples busily loaded cars with beach and picnic necessities early the next morning to get a head start on the traditional, sun and sand day at Tower Hill.

Although tests posed multitudinous problems, students smiled during finals, assured that the year had finally come to a close.

Elections, Banquets End School Year

MHS'ers basked in sun and 60-degree weather early in the year, but snow returned in February to disillusion hopes for an early spring. Juniors rehearsed for Alas, Babylon, and wrote letters of application for positions on the Miskodeed and Alltold staffs. Many underclassmen took advantage of favorable weather to take driver's tests, plan picnics, and hold club meetings out-of-doors. Student Council and numerous club elections made students hit the campaign trail with promises, pledges, and pleas.

Seniors were busy, too. While a few graduated in January, the majority counted the days to spring vacation and June 5. Entrance and achievement tests crowded college-bound seniors' days as college dreams came just a few steps closer to becoming a reality. The classrooms of trade, business, and beauty schools were also popular choices of MHS'ers. Boys checked out deferment possibilities or enlisted in the armed services, while girls possessing engagement rings turned their thoughts toward summer weddings.

School activities became more formal as banquets and recognition dinners filled the calendar. Music and choral students assisted with the Pre-Easter services and produced their own May Festival. Dress-up Day and Class Day provided a chance for upperclassmen to display their acquired status and numerous awards.

Co-Operation Marks Council Year

Under the leadership of officers Dave Nevel, President; Kathy Hillaert, Vice-President; Roger Brady, Treasurer; and Mary Ann Pechi, Secretary; the Student Council accomplished a year of service to Mishawaka High School. In August, before school began, members of Student Council helped at the Freshman Orientation Day by guiding tours for the new students. Representatives promoted and sold Miskodeeds and Student Directories in their sponsor rooms. At Homecoming and Mid-Semester the Council sponsored dances, two of the biggest events of the school year. Both dances were opened to former students and to dates who attended other schools. A large crowd attended each dance. The Council helped support the American Field Service Program by financially aiding our guest from another country and our student traveler. Each year the flag of the foreign student has been purchased to fly with the American flag. This year the Council bought the flag of Malaysia, honoring the country of exchange student Suhaila Shamsuddin. After entertaining the student body during the second semester with a Student-Faculty basketball game and a Hootenanny, the Council presented the school with an annual gift.

Spring found some juniors seeking Student Council offices. Candidates prepared petitions, campaigns with posters, and platform speeches.

By portraying characters in the senior play, Harvey, Greg Cook and Tom Reith earned membership in the National Thespian Society.

Cheryl Davis, National Honor usher, instructs Roger Brady and Karen Broomall, inductees, in the ceremony procedures.

Thespian Members Proudly Wear Pins

Thespian membership was also gained by those working on committees. Make-up Chairman Tony Marando glues a realistic beard on Bob Mead, psychiatrist.

Students sat nervously on the edge of their seats at the National Honor Society inductions held in the auditorium on November 21, 1967 and March 14, 1968, hoping their names would be called. Fifteen percent of the senior class was chosen to be members by the faculty. Mr. Merle Blue was the sponsor. The members were chosen not only on scholarship but also on character, leadership, and service. A reception tea for the inductees and their parents followed both inductions. The first semester officers were Craig Salyer, President; Bill Groth, Vice-President; Jane Zimmerman, Secretary; and Cosimo Natali, Treasurer. These offices changed the second semester with Carol Ann Nix, President; Jim LaBelle, Vice-President; Suzanne Collins, Secretary; and Hilary Asher, Treasurer.

The Emily K. Davidson Thespian Troupe 496 began its second year under the direction of Mr. James Wright. After the senior play, the roll included 29 dramatists. These students, interested in the production and presentation of plays, earned their memberships by working on the two class plays. In January the members sold MHS class pins to raise money. The Juniors who had major roles in their class play were inducted in May.

Reading Club Formed, Debaters Win

Reader's Guild officers, Mary Lea'ke, Vice-president; Mary Albanese, President; and John Marsh, Secretary-Treasurer review books.

"Hall guide!" was a familiar cry in the halls as the teachers sent the MHS hall guides off on errands. Although this was their main job, it was not their only one. The 90 hall guides maintained order in the halls and regulated traffic. Checkers and Sponsor Helen Stoddard checked hall guides for attendance and behavior.

Making a vivid comeback after years of inactivity, the MHS debate team continued building the debate program. The four varsity debaters went to several invitationals and won many honors at the spring banquet. Mr. Bruce Chamberlin coached the team. Two varsity debaters Dave Nevel, and Roger Brady, attended a two week debate seminar at Indiana University during the summer on scholarships provided by the Student Council. The two debaters placed first in the climax of a round-robin match of nine debaters at the Institute.

Students interested in books joined a new club, The Reader's Guild. This new group, sponsored by Mrs. Harriet Nye and Mrs. Helen Teeters, is an actual combination of the Book Guild and Jr. Librarians. The members saw several movies, including An Interview With Mark Twain, and they discussed new books. Paperbacks were offered to the club members at a discount.

One of the most important groups of people in the activities world of the school was the Board of Control. This group of six students and six faculty members reviewed all of the clubs' budgets.

Board of officers and their mothers. The program explored the meaning of the Y-Teen triangle, symbol for the club.

Co-sponsor Share

Y-Teens began their year with a re-formed Executive Cabinet. Led by President Tammy Reed, the Y-Teens divided into five groups. Each group, composed of two members of the Executive Board and forty-five other girls, decided on the service and social activities which they wished to carry out.

With money earned from a dance at the beginning of school and the sale of blue MHS nightshirts, the groups took turns performing courtesy services for teachers. These services varied from polished apples to cookies in the lounges. Not all the money collected, however, went for school use. Banks resembling globes were used for the World Service Project. The money collected from Y-Teeners was sent to aid needy children in foreign countries.

Finding success in the new formation of Y-Teens, ten girls were selected by Y-Teens to be the Executive Board for next year and installed at the Y-Teen Induction Tea in the spring.

Hi-Y began their year by escorting the Homecoming Queen and her court during the coronation ceremony and the dance that followed. They also co-operated with Y-Teens on the Share Project, continuing tradition. The week before Christmas vacation, Hi-Y members delivered Christmas cards to MHS students during sponsor period.

Language Clubs

Spanish Club—President Tom Vogler, Secretary Charlotte Gann, Treasurer Margie Hesck, Vice President Diana Costa.

German Club—Vice President Sterzik, Treasurer Hardisty, President Kleiser, Committees Chairman Prabst, Secretary Battenberg.

Organize Foreign-Oriented Activities

The Mishawaka Language clubs were again very active this year. The French, German, Latin, and Spanish clubs studied the customs and people of their respective countries. The French Club gained a new sponsor in Mrs. Doris Morey. The members traveled through France and other European countries this year through Steve Cunningham's slides of his summer trip. At the annual Christmas party, members exchanged token gifts and danced to French music. The 1967-68 officers were Barb Kalil, President; Pia Baldoni, Vice President; Beverly Nichols, Secretary; Nancy Wagner, Treasurer; and Dan Bonnell, Song Leader.

The German Club welcomed Mrs. Marcia Liggett as their new sponsor. These ambitious German students held a car wash to earn money for the AFS drive. Officers of this year's German Club were Marybeth Kleiser, President; Kathy Sterzik, Vice President; Rich Battenberg, Secretary; Dave Hardisty, Treasurer; and Martha Jo Probst, Committees Chairman.

The Saturnalia marked the highlight of the Latin Club's year. Miss Mary Hess directed the activities which centered around the life and customs of the ancient Romans. The toga-clad officers were Dan Nicolini, President; Pat McGee, Vice President; Regina Wilson, Secretary; Lora Nicolini, Treasurer; and Paul Moore, Sergeant-at-Arms.

The Spanish Club sold salt water taffy to earn money. At meetings they viewed films of Europe and Spain. Tom Vogler served as President; Diana Costa as Vice President; Charlotte Gann as Secretary; and Margie Hesch as Treasurer.

Foreign Life, Customs Stimulate Club

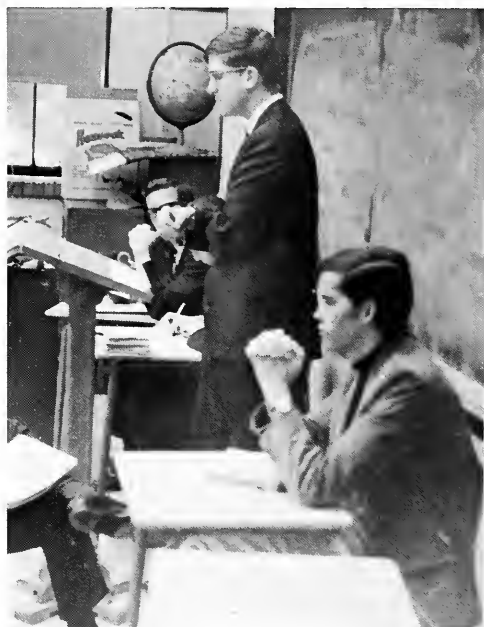

The International Relations officers Carol Nix, Vice President; Jim Shawn, President; Steve Cunningham, Treasurer; and Suhaila Shamsuddin, Secretary, locate foreign countries on a globe.

Under the sponsorship of Mr. Richard Bottorff, the active International Relations Club tried to stimulate an understanding toward foreign countries. One of the first activities of the year was a hot debate on the war in Viet Nam. Four members of the Notre Dame debate team visited the school and debated on the total escalation and complete withdrawal of the war. This program was open to all upperclassmen.

Another program that showed the willingness to understand the people of foreign lands was a panel discussion about foreign countries. The 1967 club sponsored a similar program with foreign students who discussed life in their countries. The five students this year were from Belgium, India, Malaysia, Denmark, and Columbia. They expressed their views on life as they found it in the United States.

Jim Shawn and Steve Cunningham showed slides and told of their trips to Europe last summer. They traveled abroad on the "People to People" program designed to acquaint American high school students with the cultures and customs of Europe.

Officers of the club were Jim Shawn, President; Carol Ann Nix, Vice President; Suhaila Shamsuddin, Secretary; and Steve Cunningham, Treasurer.

Newly elected officers of Future Teachers, President Dennis Cockowski, Vice President Chris Carlson, Secretary Mary Nicolini, Treasurer

Kim Walters, and Scribe Borbara Otterstein, were inducted at the annual Spring Banquet.

Future Teachers Hold Faculty Tea

The Future Teachers of America elected officers last spring before school ended. Officers Dennis Cockowski, President; Chris Carlson, Vice President; Mary Nicolini, Secretary; Kim Walters, Treasurer; and Barbara Otterstein, Scribe were inducted at the spring banquet. Their activities began in the fall.

The regular November meeting welcomed new members. Mr. Francis Hill, an MHS Social Studies teacher, entertained the Future Teachers with some of the experiences he has encountered in past years.

The FTA December meeting was a Christmas party. Mr. Walter Johnson, FTA sponsor, showed slides of his European vacation. In February FTA honored MHS teachers with their annual "Dear Teacher Day." The teachers were guests at a tea at which FTA members offered one hour of service grading papers or designing bulletin boards.

This year the most ambitious FTA members were able to participate in two extra facets of the club. Many members did cadet teaching at Bingham and Beiger schools for one hour each day. This gave the members practical experience and acquainted them with their future vocation. Other members spent one hour each week being friends and tutoring children at Perley School.

FTA members Cindy Theilking and Cheryl Taglieri post a service award for the teachers on "Dear Teachers Day".

Office Skits Solve Business Problems

"But you'll just have to wait," explains Mary Ann Pechi to Eve Thompson as they act out roles for discussion at a Business Club meeting.

For those interested in pursuing a career in the clerical, stenographic, or other commercial fields, the MHS Business Club provided enjoyment as well as practical examples and advice concerning job openings, interviews, and opportunities. The initiation in October tested the old members' resourcefulness in stunt planning as well as the initiates' ability for impromptu skits.

Demonstrating various job skills, a hair-stylist from the House of James Beauty School gave a demonstration, a state representative of the National Association of Secretaries explained the requirements of a Certified Public Secretary, and Mrs. Florence Wrase gave tips on being a better secretary.

In February, Mrs. Sharon Thomas, a secretary with the National Savings and Loan, judged the decisions that the players made in role-playing office situations.

Challenging each other in the spring, typists and shorthand "speeders" boosted their skills while viewing for the coveted pins awarded to the three highest scorers in each division. Seniors anticipated the announcement of the Uniroyal trophy winner, presented each year to the business major with the highest average.

Business Club officers, Secretary Paula Miller, Treasurer Barbara Kopec, President Nancy Austin, and Vice President Florene Tardi, practice office maneuvers. The club members gained experience and information about the business world.

Mixing up a cake was only one of the projects that the Home Ec Club officers, Secretary Vicki Rose, Vice President Jocki Ludwig, President Lynn Bevan, and Treasurer Linda Jewell, attempted.

Homemakers Pull Hot, Sticky Taffy

The Home Ec Club under the sponsorship of Mrs. Nancy Byrd and Miss Mary Nicholson provided activities for MHS girls interested in domestic pursuits. While many of the girls wished to improve their cooking and sewing, others were anxious to learn the ways of efficient homemakers to create a pleasant atmosphere.

President Lynn Bevan, Vice President Jackie Ludwig, Secretary Vicki Rose, and Treasurer Linda Jewell began their year with a potluck dinner. Originally, the officers planned the potluck as a picnic at Merrifield Park. Cold fall weather, however, forced the girls inside.

The girls in Home Ec Club entertained themselves with old-fashioned fun at a taffy pull meeting and declared the results of the taffy were worth the sticky mess they created during the mixing and pulling. During February the girls again assembled to work with sticky substances. This time they produced popcorn balls.

Home Ec Club sponsored three projects, two money-making projects and a service project. At Thanksgiving time the members gathered canned foods and bought hams to fill baskets for welfare families.

Shaking the pan, Karen Moore makes sure that the popcorn for the popcorn ball sale is not burned.

Art Club officers Vice President Cyndee Holland, Vice President Sarah Spencer, Secretary JoAnne Metsch, Treasurer Marc Erwin, and

President Vicki Outcalt work on wood sculptures. Art Club members worked on several projects in class and at meetings.

Art Club Views Regional Show Work

Painting Student Council talent show publicity signs, Art Club member Andrea DeVlieger earns service points.

An interest and appreciation for art drew enthusiastic high school students to the Art Club. Miss Rosa Weikel, art teacher and club sponsor, had a large student cabinet which included President Vicki Outcalt, Co-Vice Presidents Sarah Spencer and Cyndee Holland, Secretary Jo Anne Metsch, and Treasurer Marc Erwin.

A unique aspect of the Art Club was the receiving of points toward awards. Points were obtained by attending exhibits and writing a report on them or by writing original reports on an artist, masterpiece, or some aspect of art. Members could also receive points for rendering service to other clubs. With the points gained in three years of Art Club, members received a pin. Four years of membership in the club earned the students a safety guard for their pin.

The Art Club decorated MHS for Christmas by making and selling artificial corsages. Foreign Exchange Student Suhaila Shamsuddin presented her slides of Malaysia at a fall meeting. After Christmas vacation the members reviewed a movie on the Louvre, an art museum in Paris. Mishawaka Public Librarian Harley Spencer presented a lecture on paper sculpturing. The club sponsored a Psychedelic painting party as a lively ending to their activities.

New Laboratories Aid Science Club

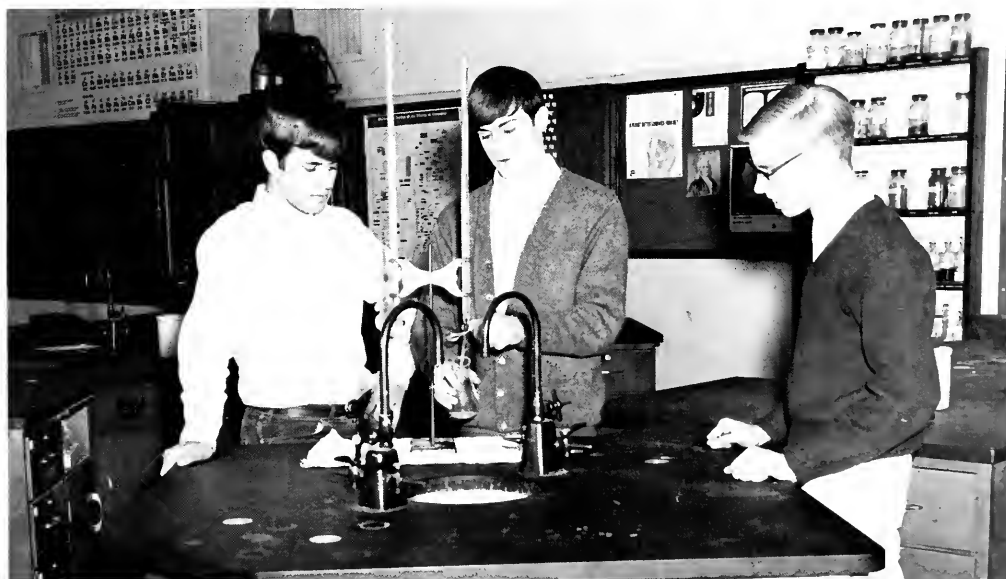

Learning and advancing their knowledge was the prime objective of the Science Club this year. Club sponsor Mr. Charles Karst planned the year's activities with help from President Kerry Deardorff, Vice President Tom Bicknell, Secretary-Treasurer Gerald DeWulf, and Sergeant-at-Arms William Daily.

Much of the member's learning was accomplished on tours. A tour through Bendix Aviation and Missile plant and a trip to Miles Laboratories occupied the evening hours of Science Club members. At the first meeting of the year, Peggy Huff told of her experiences at an eight-week science institute at Purdue University. Mr. John Chelminiak, Mishawaka High School biology teacher, lectured on oceanography at the February meeting.

Science Club members Dave Bent and Bob Cannon, using a gasoline engine supplied by Tom Kobb, made a private study project on air pollution. The boys attached a can filled with fiberglass to the engine. When the engine was running the fumes given off were trapped in the fiberglass. By filtering fumes from the fiberglass they analyzed their noxious content. The analysis results estimated the unhealthy gases breathed daily.

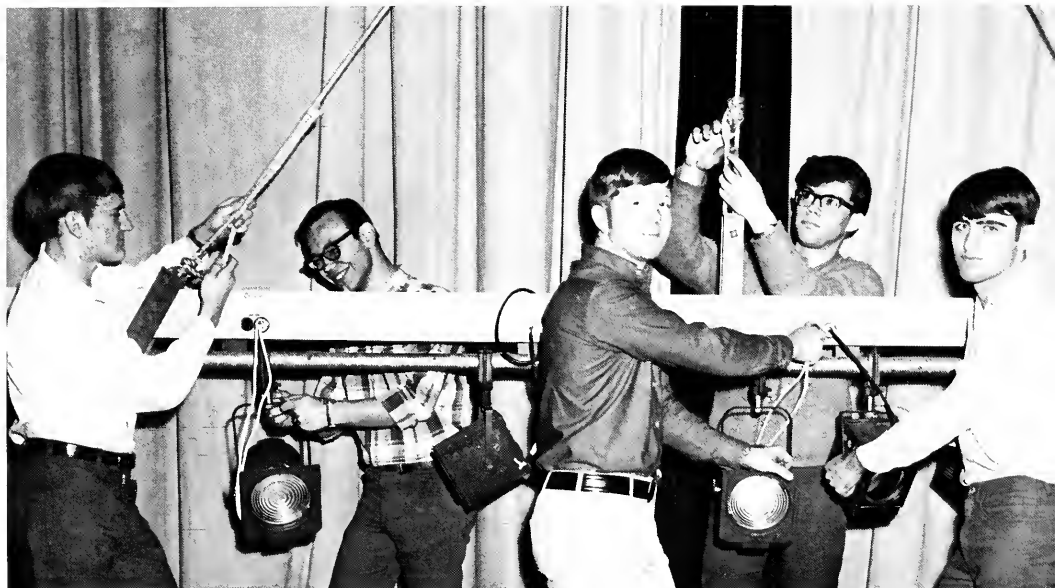

Science students Dave Bent and Bob Cannon work on their club project of operating a finicky gasoline engine.

process of titrating an unknown acid. These experiments composed the main activities of the club.

Stage Crew members Chet Micinski, Bill Morris, Henry Catolino, Tom Smith, and Mike Boehlein wire the lighting circuits of the stage.

The Stage Crew did all the work behind the scenes for the plays, Vespers, and other stage productions.

Assists at Plays

The Usher's Club with their new sponsor, Mr. Floyd Zeiger boasted new blazers. These maroon jackets ornamented with white-lettered emblems added a new look to the club. Senior David Zeigler served as President; Bob MacDonald as Vice President, and Larry West as Secretary. The ushers served at the class plays, concerts, Christmas Vespers, and basketball games.

Mr. Edward Fleming directed the Stage Crew which was in demand for assemblies, class plays, Vespers, and pep sessions. Their job behind the scenes was set up scenery, lights, and P.A. systems. Their biggest job this year was wiring eight new circuits, a gift of the class of '66, into the lighting system and organizing the storage areas.

The White Caps-White Coats, directed by Mrs. Gladys Conant, was organized for those students interested in medical careers. Several speakers talked to the members about different careers in health and medicine. These students also got experience in helping people by making dressings for the Cancer Society and bibs for the Children's Hospital.

Miss Rebecca Kable sponsored the Red Cross. These school representatives helped people in the field of medicine by visiting and comforting old people at the Krogh Nursing Home.

Helping Mrs. Conant in the nurses office are White Caps-White Coats officers Vice President Pam Taylor, President Toni Beehler, Treasurer Judy Heater, and Secretary Linda Jasiewicz.

Projects for Awards

In addition to everyday practices which enabled A Cappella Choir to work on additional music, members spent much of their spare time participating in Choir projects. The choral music department sponsored a holly and evergreen sale to earn money for music awards. Orders were taken in advance. Two weeks before Christmas juggling bags of holly and evergreen, salesmen delivered their parcels. To aid in money for awards, the choir made a recording for the third year in a row. Under the supervision of Mr. John Long and a float committee, members worked until late hours building a winning float for homecoming. The float, featuring a ferocious devil won a $10 prize for originality.

Upholding tradition, Vespers were presented to the public in two services the week before Christmas. The choir was aided by living pictures in the presentation of the Christmas story.

Before the end of school in June, the A Cappella Choir joined with the band and orchestra to present the May Music Festival. Each Music department performed individual numbers as well as two combined pieces.

Music Honor Society began their activities after Christmas vacation with the induction of new members. To become a member one must have been accepted by his musical performance, either instrument or vocal, and then have passed a written test on music.

Hackett Directs Orchestra 30 Years

The Orchestra's lead pianist, Becky Smith, is spotlighted as she performs before a school assembly.

In September, the 1967-1968 Concert Orchestra began its new year, led by Concert-Mistress Brenda Pfaller. This marked Miss Madolyn Hackett's thirtieth year directing the MHS Orchestra.

The Concert Orchestra performed four times during the year. Their first event was the Winter Concert on December 7, 1967. Becky Smith soloed on the piano, playing Grieg's "Concerto in A Minor." Ted Waggoner played "Holy City" on his trumpet. Other numbers included themes from Italian movies and a medley of songs from the Music Man. They also presented this program for a "B" assembly in January.

Throughout the year small, three and five member string ensembles played for various club events, including the F.T.A., Y-Teens, and Latin Club. They also provided dinner music for the Lions Club. Several musicians participated in community symphonies.

The Theatre Orchestra, composed of about half of the Concert Orchestra, was also very active this year. They played prelude and intermission music for the two class plays, the senior play Harvey, and the Junior class production.

The Concert Orchestra had two spring performances, the May Festival and the Spring Concert. They played the overture from Lohengrin by Wagner, and "The Magic Flute" by Mozart. Brenda Pfaller played the Mendelssohn Violin Concerto.

Songs at Halftimes

"Georgy Girl" and "Caberet" were familiar songs around the band room this year. The 1967-68 Marching Band, under the direction of Mr. Walter Bowers and Mr. Robert Needham, played these and other popular songs from famous movies and plays. The 24 Pom Pon girls and baton twirlers worked on new dance steps accompanied by the 88 member band playing hit songs of the Tijuana Brass. Senior Doug Overman, drum major, led the band through these precise maneuvers.

The Summer Band practiced for six weeks during the summer and gave a concert on the school lawn. The band also rehearsed third hour for their shows at half-time during the seven home football games.

The Concert Band performed January 11 for the first musical event of the year. A trumpet trio featured Albert Maeyens, Ora Anderson, and Tedd Waggoner. Seven seniors won sweaters for four years perfect attendance.

The pep band, composed of 24 members of the Marching Band, played for pep sessions and basketball games. To display their versatility, their repertoire varied from "The Star Spangled Banner" to "The Stripper."

Four pep band members, Tam Zimmerman, Brent Ward, Mark Greenwood, and John Schroeder liven school spirit at an all-school pep assembly.

Alltold Celebrates Its 'Golden' Year

The Alltold's appearance has drastically changed since the newspaper's first printing in 1918. This year marks the 50-year anniversary of the Alltold. It began as the Journalist on March 28, 1918 and changed to Alltold December, 1918. The first issues advertised war bonds, gave advice on freckles, advertised vaudeville, and declared smoking to be a passing fad.

The Alltold has changed in the last year, also. Staff reorganization changed the position of Editor-in-chief to Managing Editor. The new editor wrote Page One, editorials, and supervised all pages. Page Three Editors received an increase in work this year, as they wrote for the high school page of The South Bend Tribune. Dan Nicolini, Photo Editor, bounced between Alltold and Miskodeed to meet all deadlines. Juniors outnumbered the three Alltold staff seniors. Invading school on a Saturday morning with paint from Shapiro's, staffers brightened their "newsroom."

Quill and Scroll, short of members at the beginning of the school year, remedied this lack with a November induction. Following tradition, members published the Browse, sold plastic covers for the Miskodeed, and sponsored a bus trip to Valparaiso University for High School Journalism Day. For the first time the Journalism Department hosted the St. Joseph County Quill and Scroll Journalism Day.

Junior staffers helped the seniors alphabetize more than 1600 Misko-deeds at the 1967 autograph and distribution party.

Following Miskodeed tradition, the '68 staff celebrated their birthdays. Tom Grau contemplates how to cut a cake into twenty pieces.

MISKODEED Gets New Advisor, Room

Beginning with the two work parties, the Miskodeeders settled down in their new office. The staffers moved across the building into a smaller room and painted the walls yellow and the bulletin board green. Miss Janet Eberle began her first year as faculty adviser of the Miskodeed, following Miss Martha Miller, whose 1967 Miskodeed won her the Miskodeed's twentieth All-American rating from National Scholastic Press Association.

Although Miskodeeders appeared calm and cool in classes, they secretly worried about looming deadlines and clever captions. Editor-in-chief Susan Hess worried about her opening section, layout, copy, and artwork. Student Life Editor Peggy Huff and Activities Editors Beth Otterstein and Connie Kelly combined their sections to form the new School Life Section. Academics Editor Kathy Koleszar struggled to set up original classroom pictures. Underclass Editor Karen Williams, Senior Editor Mary Jane Dexter, and Faculty Editor Dennis Cackowski toiled to index names and set up individual pictures. Business Manager Steve Woods, Circulation Manager Martha Jo Probst, typists Pam Cook, Brenda Pfaller, and Dana Holycross helped other staffers with their forms, stencils, and budgets. Sports Editors Tom Grau and Will Pooley wrote copy on the year's athletic events.

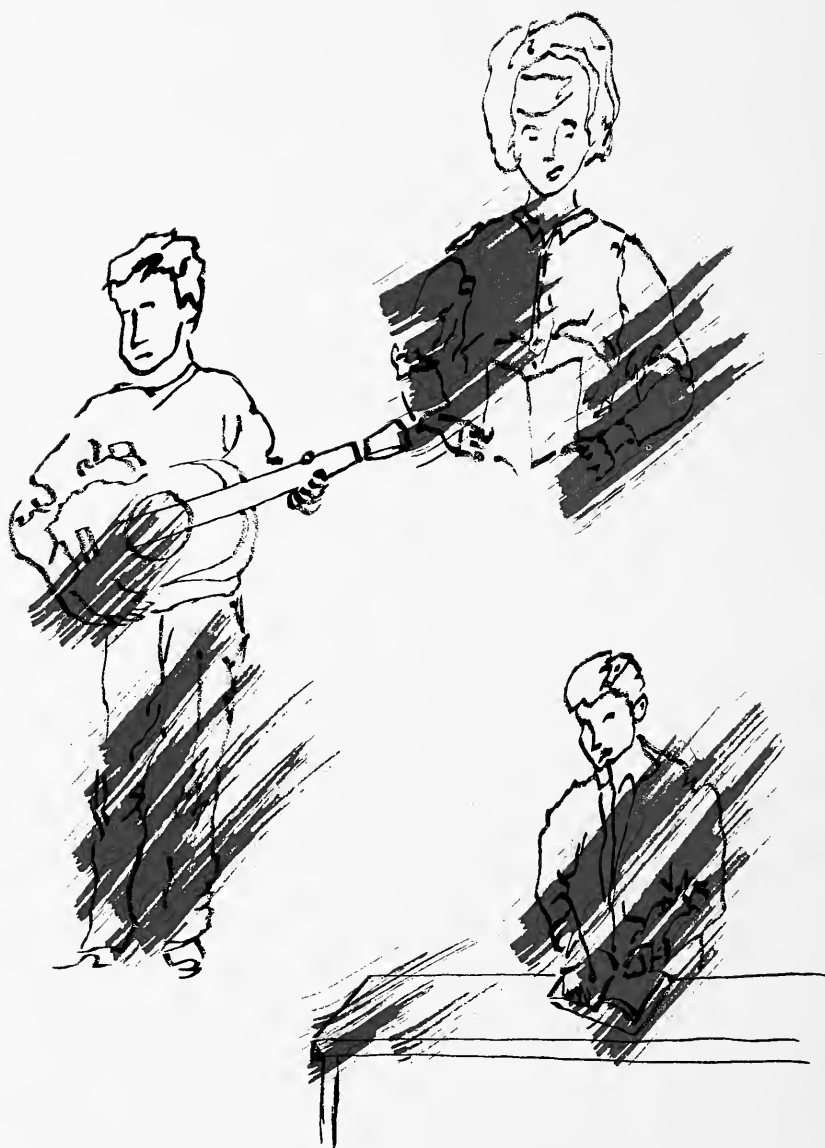

Photographers Mark Winiarz, Dan Nicalini, Dave Nevel, and Tom Tkach found themselves busy taking pictures for both the Alltold and the Miskodeed. They scrambled around taking, developing, and printing more than 1000 pictures for the publications.

Academics

The academic program at Mishawaka High School provided the backbone for the rest of the school activities. The students spent about one-third of each week day in school or studying. For science students, experiments went much more smooth and quick because of the improved facilities in the new labs. Book reports, poetry interpretations, and research papers gave English students a few sleepless nights. Math classes solved equations, proved theorems, and memorized trigonometric functions. Language students recited dialogues and poems and worked in the labs. City Council meetings, interviews, and research were all part of the social studies curriculum. The typewriters clicked, instruments blared, and printing presses rumbled to add to the MHS 1968 sound. The MHS curriculum was truly a comprehensive one.

Riots, Peace Topics in Government

Present-day problems were a vital issue to MHS students. International Relations students heatedly debated the War on Poverty, the Vietnam conflict, and the Arab-Israeli War, while government students questioned the usefulness of the 117 year-old Indiana Constitution. In sociology classes, students argued the question of which mate should be superior, sought an answer to the true causes of last summer's riots, and discussed the problems of interfaith marriages.

For ten hours of independent work, Mr. Merle Blue's government classes drew artistic posters, interviewed prominent city officials, and attended the spirited debates at the city council meetings. Citizenship students examined newspaper articles, made career notebooks, and sang the Mishawaka school song.

While trying to determine the causes and effects of wars, World History classes discovered that man has had as many years of war as of peace. U.S. History classes studied the past history of America to learn mistakes that have been made and thus not repeat them. Dealing with imaginary stock, the seniors who took economics were delighted when their stock rose.

Students in Mr. Richard Bottarff's sociology classes often found time to sit and stare at the original bulletin board at the back of room 109. Unusual pictures were arranged in scattered formations to give a casual appearance to the carefully prepared board. Pictures include politicians, popsingers, and actors. Seniors Debbie Stretch and Bob Harringer assist Mr. Bottarff as he changes the format of the pictures.

Citizen Instincts Prodded to Action

Brenda Burkert interviews Mr. Donald Thompson, Mishawaka City Controller, as part of her independent work for government class.

To teach his students more about voting machines, Mr. Merle Blue shows Greg Cook the names on a sample ballot.

To become more aware of their local government, Debbie Claeys and Jim LaBelle searched the newspaper for political articles.

In the City Council room at the City Hall, government class students observe elected officials as part of their study of local politics.

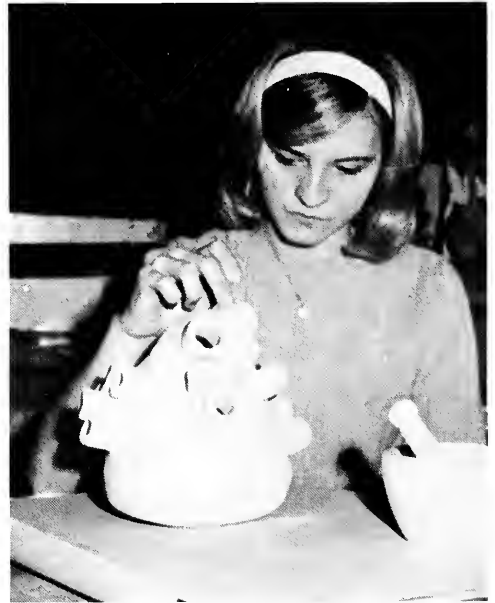

For Creativity,

To acquire the fundamentals of art, students took Art I, a study of design and color. Young artists often stayed after school for several weeks in a row, to finish their detailed wood-prints. To express their deepest emotions, some student artists dabbled in modern art while others sketched anything from shopping centers to garbage cans. Art students illustrated class play programs, Christmas Vespers, and the Browse, the English Department literary magazine. In the drawing and painting classes, students started on simple pencil sketches, progressing to water colors, finally worked on detailed oil paintings. In art history classes, students fashioned clay models of ancient Mayan gods while they studied the Mayan culture.

Giving enjoyment to others was the prime objective of music students. First-hour organ students demonstrated their talents for Christmas Vespers. Small orchestra ensembles performed for church groups and private organizations. Preparing for the last North Central Music Festival, the A Capella Choir rehearsed long hours to perfect dynamics and tone problems.

Senior Ron Cosner, first choir trombanist, lubricates his trombone slide to insure superior performance for the January band concert.

In Art IX, students often stayed after school to finish their projects. Vicki Outcalt glazes her unusual clay sculpture.

Art, Music Stimulate Imaginations

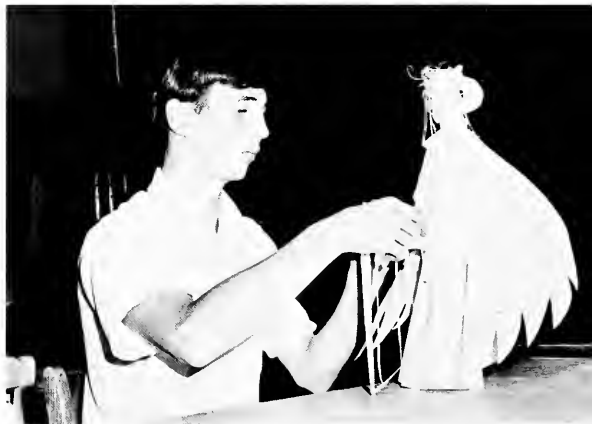

Singers in the A Copella Choir found that they had to memorize their music outside of class because most of the class period was spent in interpreting the high quality of music they performed. They entertained many school and community groups.

Before Christmas, artists in the drawing and painting classes pointed the Madonna. Kurt Grant adjusts a fold in model Andrea DeVliegher's robe.

Ken Quick, on Art IX student, works on the paper angel he constructed as a project just before Christmas.

Modern Laboratories Unveil

Karen Broomall measures the wave frequency of the ripple tank while Casimo Natali holds the light.

Kerry Deardorff measures the radioactivity of an object while his partner Tim Bess adjusts the frequency.

For one of the last experiments in chemistry, lab assistant Bill Groth titrates the strength of an unknown acid.

Hidden Mysteries of Science

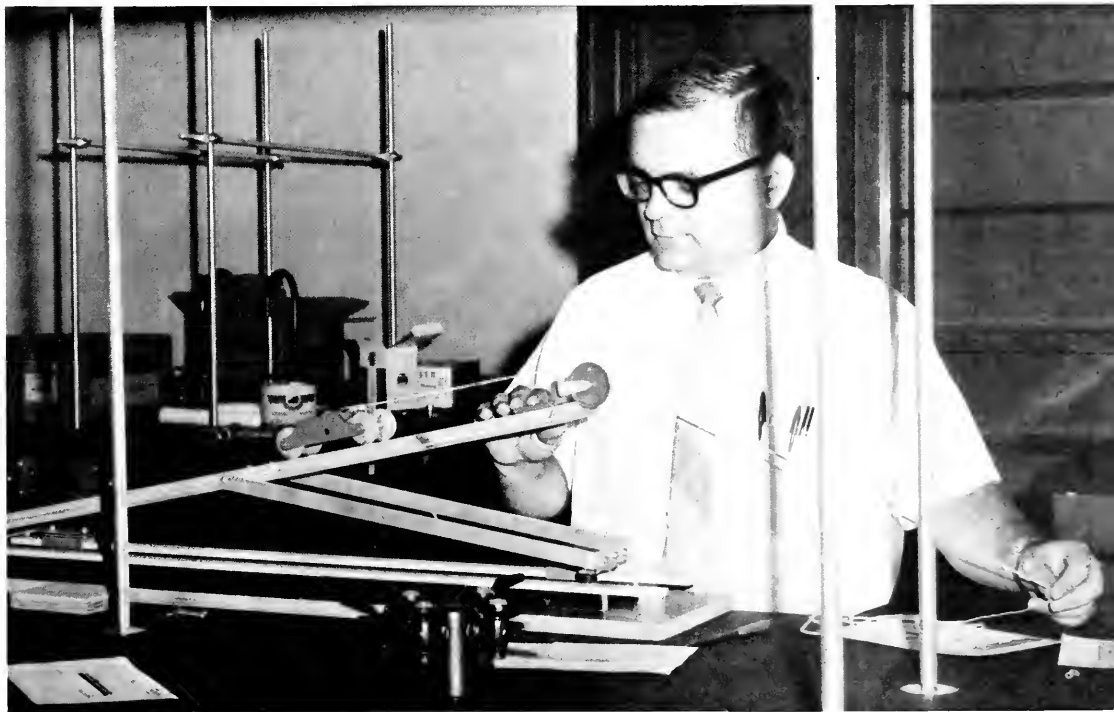

The gleaming new chemistry and physics laboratories delighted the science students, but the problems were still difficult. Slide rules were well-used this year as chemistry students raced to finish complicated gas law problems. Budding new physicists still measured acceleration by photographing a dropped ball. "If it isn't the safest way, it isn't the best way," said physics teacher Mr. James Braunsdorf. So goggle-garbed science students obeyed the state requirements.

The inevitable frog dissection was survived by all the sophomore girls, who had both dreaded and anticipated the day. Biology students collected insects and leaves, identified birds, memorized the bones in the human body, and dissected crayfish.

The trade science course gave a scientific background to students majoring in vocational shop. Classes studied the properties of oxygen, hydrogen, and other gases during the first semester. Trade Science students learned some chemistry and physics to prepare themselves for an industrial career.

To calculate the density of air, Chet Micinski reads the temperature of the water, and Tim Kobb places a glass flask into it.

Mr. James Braunsdorf often enlivened his small physics classes by playing with one of the various "toys". To show friction and force to his class, he demonstrates the advantages of an inclined plane, using some of his new equipment in the remodeled lab.

Novels Intrigue Language Classes

Rich Witwer gazes at a German stein while listening to tapes in the language lab. Students often brought examples of German culture.

This year, third-year French again appeared on student's schedules. These advanced French students wrote long themes and read a complete novel in French. Beginning students read Le Petit Prince, a French novel, and conversed in French most of the class period.

Sounds of "Feliz Me Sienta," were heard coming from the first-year Spanish classes. Perched on the top of a shelf in the Spanish room a pinata in the form of a small donkey became the Spanish mascot. Students observed film-strips of the neighbors south of the border and learned while enjoying the movies.

First-year German students frequently visited the language laboratory, as did other language students, to listen to themselves and to correct their pronunciation mistakes. Advanced students often gave oral reports and demonstration speeches complete with appropriate gestures and expressions to their classmates.

English derivatives of Latin words were important to Latin students. Studying the Roman culture, the first-year classes discovered the exploits of early Roman heroes such as Horatius at the bridge, and the Horatii brothers. Second-year classes read certain portions of Caesar's writing and furthered their knowledge of Latin grammar. Third-year students celebrated the birthday of Rome, April 21, 754 B.C., held a Mythology Day on which they discussed their favorite gods and goddesses.

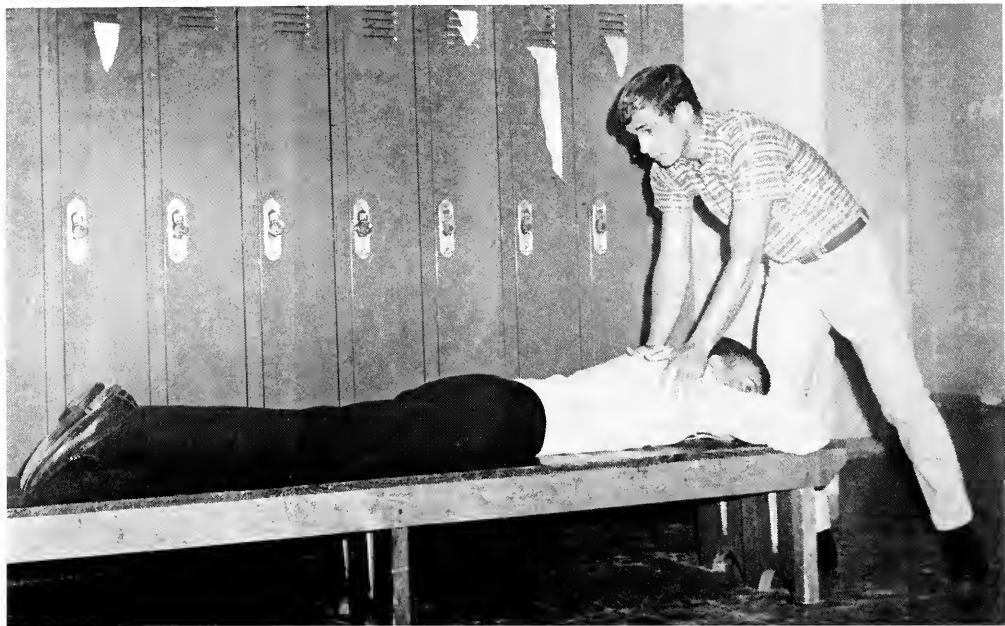

Janet Wise and Linda Cunningham examine a pinata, a decorated jar filled with candies.

To better acquaint themselves with the dead culture of the ancient Romans, Latin VI students learned about their gods. Seniors Nancy Mann and Linda Jasiewicz add another feather to a Roman gladiator's helmet used for a class demonstration first hour.

Trying to "revive" health student Greg Deitchley, Senior Will Pooley practices his artificial respiration technique. Stretched on a gym bench, Greg acts his role for the other class members. Lifesaving is only one of the safety procedures discussed in health.

Straining Muscles Build Fitness

Diving the wrong way occurs more often when swimmers first begin. The "belly flop" is shown by a girl in the swimming class.

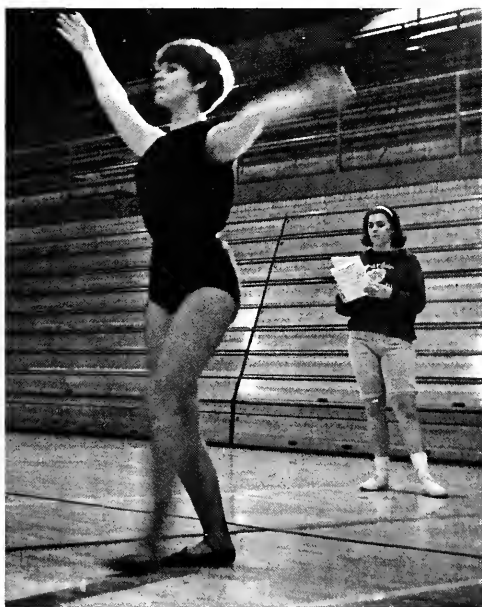

"Go, you chicken-fat, go!" sang girls' physical education classes as they exercised to the record. Earnestly trying to improve muscle tone, lose weight, and improve their figures, the straining girls stretched protesting muscles in sit-ups, push-ups, and jumping jacks. High-flying badminton "birdies" soared over the net, while in the gym lobby whizzing ping-pong balls beat out a staccato rhythm.

On the other side of the wooden curtain, athletic boys found that deceptively "easy" volleyball provided a strenuous workout for them. Boys threw the colossal cage ball over the net, trying not to let it hit the ground. The most enjoyable part of the physical education classes was undoubtedly the many laps around the top of the gym that the boys ran—a time when they could see the girls' classes!

The inevitable six short bells signalled the spring disaster drills. Students derided the tornado safety position but could not deny its value. Health students practiced tying tourniquets, giving artificial respiration, and applying bandages. Girls in driver's education classes groaned attempting to learn the major functions and parts of the car's engine, but sometimes achieved better grades than the boys.

Girls attentively listen to Mrs. Louise Gould, girls' gym instructor, as she outlines the rules for the badminton tournament.

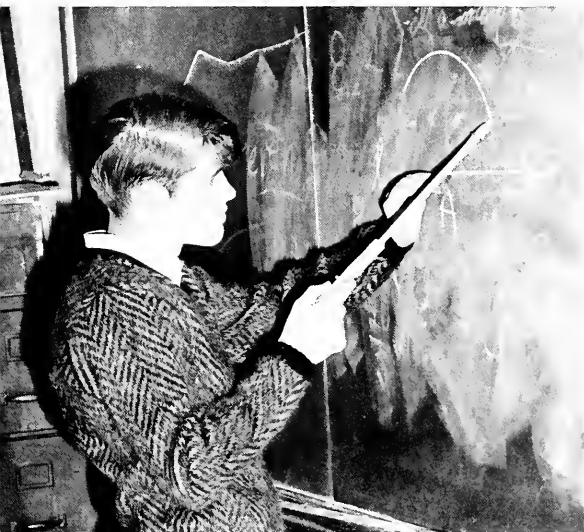

Gymnastics includes many exercises, some more difficult than others. Debbie Werbrouck practices free exercise with Nonette Schnoible's aid.

For her failure to stop at the stop sign, Carol Hotfield's driver education teacher recommends that she kiss the sign to remind her to stop.

Sophomore Gary Petersen demonstrates the proper method of constructing a perpendicular to a line to his Geometry II class.

Freshman Cannie Muszynski puzzles over the mystery of a mathematical phenomenon, a strip of paper that has only one surface.

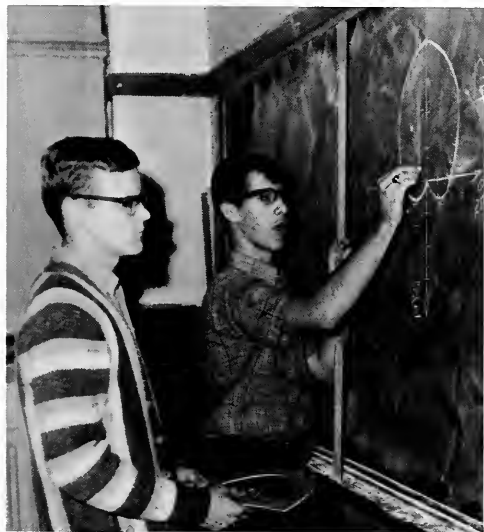

Rich Battenburg toys with paper structures used to illustrate geometric principles.

Julia Olszewski and Ed Krone-witter examine an obacus, one of the teaching aids used in General Math I.

Colleges Demand More Math Prowess

To become familiar with an additional coordinate system, Seniors Don Nisley and Tom Robinett graph polar coordinates.

From the elements of fractions and factoring in Algebra I to the complexities of negative exponents and polar coordinates in Senior Math II, MHS students acquired the mathematical prowess suited to their needs.

Trying to understand the intricacies of modern math, first-year algebra students wrestled with quadratic equations, graphs, and sets. Other freshmen taking general math found interest rates and reviewed arithmetic. Geometry students tackled the job of testing proofs. These same students took compass and straight-edge in hand to bisect angles, draw perpendiculars to lines, and create isosceles triangles. New this year in geometry was the use of an historical film about Galileo Galilei, father of modern science.

While their underclass companions studied the proof of Pythagoras' theorem, Algebra III and IV students delved into the deep mysteries surrounding trigonometric identities and trig functions. Through force parallelograms, senior math students calculated the courses and the wind correction angles of airplanes. The Indiana University School of Arts and Science raised their mathematics requirements, thus causing problems for seniors because their schedules did not allow them extra mathematics.

Personalities

A glance down the halls of Mishawaka High School showed that the students of 1968 were different from those of previous years. This was the year of short plaid kilts, huge wrist watches, wide-track striped shirts, octagon heels, pant dresses, over-the-knee socks, hair falls, square-toed shoes, and chain belts. But fashion was not the only thing that set the MHS'ers of 1968 apart. The attitude and behavior of the student body were more serious and more mature than ever before. The Class of 1971 adjusted themselves to MHS with poise and maturity while upperclassmen displayed classroom concentration to meet college or job requirements. But students also had fun. School clubs and activities met after school to plan for floats, dances, and banquets while week-ends were filled with dates and parties.

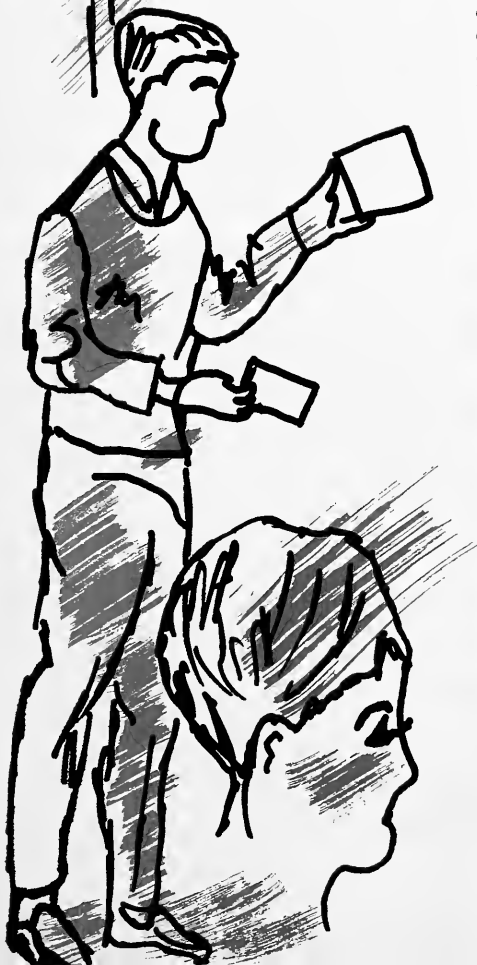

Personalities

A glance down the halls of Mishawaka High School showed that the students of 1968 were different from those of previous years. This was the year of short plaid kilts, huge wrist watches, wide-track striped shirts, octagon heels, pant dresses, over-the-knee socks, hair falls, square-toed shoes, and chain belts. But fashion was not the only thing that set the MHS'ers of 1968 apart. The attitude and behavior of the student body were more serious and more mature than ever before. The Class of 1971 adjusted themselves to MHS with poise and maturity while upperclassmen displayed classroom concentration to meet college or job requirements. But students also had fun. School clubs and activities met after school to plan for floats, dances, and banquets while week-ends were filled with dates and parties.

The 21 students in Miss Martha Miller's Office Practice class work individually to complete their projects. They are required to complete thirty hours of work in the business office, cleaning stencils, taking dictation, and mimeographing forms for the business department.

Judy Greenlee and Valerie Travis concentrate on the drills in the typing book in attempt to improve their speed and accuracy.

Wanted: Nimble Typing Fingers

With their eyes focused on the copy, beginning typists practiced daily drills and tried to achieve a goal of 50 net words per minute without errors. They were tempted to glance down at their copy to locate forgotten keys, but knew their speed would suffer.

At first the Gregg Characters were as strange to the shorthand students as hieroglyphics. Students found fewer brief forms in the new Gregg Diamond Jubilee shorthand. After conquering the curvy symbols with the aid of flash cards, advanced students strove to take dictation at 140 words per five-minute-takes with 95% accuracy and to transcribe them, which improved their typing skill. General Business was transformed into a one-year course for freshmen as well as a one-semester course for sophomores.

To improve business skills, bookkeeping students figured net income and net worth of a business. Besides learning to use the voucher system, advanced pupils made journal entries to close out a partnership and to start a corporation. After reviewing basic grammar, business English students gave sales talks and took an Indiana Bell Telephone Company test. Office practice students transcribed letters from the dictaphone and learned to operate a calculator, ditto and mimeographing machines, and adding machines.

A follow-up study of alumni was taken to see how the business major graduates were doing.

Mrs. Eornhart points out letters on a chart for beginning typing students to type without looking at the keyboards of their typewriters.

Deans Check Students' Appearances

Mr. Lowell Yaw, Assistant Superintendent, handles the financial end of the Mishawaka Schools and assists Superintendent Freeman.

Assistant Principal Thomas Rice has the job of controlling club budgets, and he assists in making class schedules.

School Board members Mr. Andrew Plodowski, Mr. Delmer Anderson, Mr. Richard Schiffer, Mr. Robert Schalliol, Superintendent Freeman, and Mrs. Laverne Speiser, watched closely the activities of the various schools in the school system.

Mr. Thurston Accepts New Position

Marking his last year at Mishawaka High, Principal Walter E. Thurston was promoted to Assistant Superintendent while continuing his policy of school improvement. Changes included remodeling the chemistry and physics labs and replacing the stationary desks, except those in Room 138, with modern, plastic-topped desks. The business education department received some new typewriters and some new desks. Mr. Thurston stated that there is a good chance that a new addition will be added to the vocational wing. Such courses as barbering, auto mechanics, and some advanced art courses may be added to the curriculum.

Concurring with Dr. Freeman, Mr. Thurston believes that the departmental meetings have had great value. As a regular part of the school day, Mr. Thurston schedules meetings with school leaders, attends departmental meetings, and visits classrooms to observe students and teachers. Mr. Thurston always tries to take an active part in school activities.

Other administration duties, shared by Mr. Rice, Assistant Principal, Miss Wilson, Dean of Girls, and Mr. Dykstra, Dean of Boys, included checking student conduct and helping students with any academic or personal problems. The two deans also had control over various other activities. Such things as vehicle registration and the scheduling of special extra curricular activities fell under their jurisdiction.

Principal Walter E. Thurston was proud of the accomplishments of this years' four classes and took pride in their able leadership.

Controlling school dress and the attitudes of Mishawaka girls keeps Miss Lynetta Wilson, Dean of girls, quite busy.

Mr. Eugene Dykstra, Dean of Boys, listened to many student excuses as to why they were tardy or why they were marked absent.

While Juniors Search Inner Selves,

English Students Denny Kring and Nancy Nelson study a scale replica of William Shakespeare's Globe Theater.

Trying to juggle note cards, a stack of library books, and pages of rough drafts taxed many seniors' patience. The resulting research paper was the culmination of a semester spent composing many short themes. Trying to perfect their footnotes and make smooth transitions from one paragraph to another, seniors typed and retyped the pages of their source theme. Clarity and coherence in writing and vocabulary building were objectives of the English VII course.

Learning to appreciate the best writing of English and American authors, English II and IV students delved into Great Expectations and Carl Sandburg's poems. The difference between a gerund and a participle baffled freshman English I classes. Miss Rebecca Kabel's English V classes constructed plot diagrams of William Shakespeare's plays that stretched out for more than ten feet along her classroom wall.

Members of Miss Janet Eberle's English III-J classes adapted plays for radio and wrote stories, magazine articles, and news casts. Hoping to be a star in a class play, dramatics students studied the form of the stage and worked to perfect their dialects. Using doll furniture and hand-stitched curtains, student dramatists literally "set the stage" by creating miniature stages.

Dramatics student Nancy Kraft makes final adjustments on her set, a requirement for dramatists.

Gridders Begin Year Cold; End Hot

Leaving would-be tacklers behind him, Senior Halfback Chuck Hoffman heads for an open field during the Morian game.

Dubbed the "wounded Maroons" in early predictions in the newspapers, the Cavemen completed a comeback season with a 5-4-1 tally. The conference record earned Head Coach Bill Karpinski's team a fourth place ranking in the NIHSC standings. During the season the Cavemen were rated as high as 15th in the state. Buried under an avalanche of mistakes, penalties, and injuries, the Maroons found paydirt only once during a 27-7 romp by the Marian Knights in the opening game. The following week, the still injury-plagued Cavemen were defeated by a fast-moving Adams team, 25-6.

Though missing several key players, the Cavemen dominated the Riley game in nearly all statistics. The bitterly fought contest was decided in the closing two minutes of the game when the Wildcats were able to push across a final touchdown drive to win, 19-14. The Cavemen found their first victory by crushing the Goshen Redskins in a 30-13 touchdown spree.

With a 1-3 record, the Cavemen faced the Washington Panthers, then ranked first in the state. For the first time, all regular starters were on hand, including veteran Quarterback Don Plummer and All-State Guard Randy Shayler. The MHS defensive unit, sparked by outstanding performances from End Steve Wiseman, Tackles Dennis Kring and Steve Watts, as well as Shayler, completely stopped the two Washington speedsters, Lucius Turner and Lonzo Lowery. After a scoreless first quarter in intermittent rain, Byron Aldrich retrieved a loose ball and raced forty yards for a TD. Senior Halfback Chuck Hoffman also scored in the third period when he broke loose for a 67-yard touchdown scamper. The 12-12 tie forced Washington from its state and conference perch.

Better Swings Improve Linkster Record

The golf squad found long distance courses and an unusual number of highly competitive opponents to be their two major pitfalls. On several occasions the two factors combined to spell out defeat for the team.

The linksmen did manage to gain victories over every team in the conference except Riley and La Porte at one time or another. Separated by clusters of defeats, however, these victories seemed few and far between. The underclassmen-dominated team was coached by John Chelminiak. Hoping that his boys might drop 10-15 strokes from their 1966 cumulative scores, Coach Chelminiak anticipated a winning season. The 10-15-1 record was far more successful than the 1-11 tally compiled by the 1966 team.

After an opening loss to Concord, the linksmen bounced back the following week to tie Penn and suffer a one point loss to Goshen. The team then fell into a mid-season slump dotted with victories over Adams, Goshen, and Riley. The golfers could only manage to come close in many matches, losing by one and two strokes on several occasions. Playing with renewed skill, the golf squad entered a mid-May triangular with St. Joseph and Marian. The linksmen defeated both teams by firing a 302 score, only three strokes from a new school record. Blasting the ball on drives and putting with accuracy, the golf team was led by Junior Dennis Kring. Claude Rodgers and Dave VanAvermaete split the second-man honors. The team placed third in the Kaepler Memorial play.

M.H.S. Harriers Compile 7-5-1 Season

A successful team of cross country competitors romped to a winning season for Coach Carl Wiseman. Hours of practice that began in late July paid off as the team of young runners defeated a majority of their opponents and compiled an impressive record of seven wins, five losses, and one unusual tie with Penn. The harriers were paced by Senior Bill Groth, Juniors Mike Mammon and Chuck Ehler, and Sophomore Craig Hunter.

Team Captain Mike Mammon traveled the two-mile course in 9:59.5, best for the 1967 season. Mammon also placed 18th in the sectional as he led the Maroon squad which placed 5th out of 22 participating schools. Ehler was close behind Mammon with a 10:17 clocking. Hunter toured the distance in 10:16. At the close of the cross country season, Bill Groth received the 1967 Burgess Award, given each year in Cross Country and Track to the senior with the best attitude and general character.

The Harriers raced to a successful start by defeating Central and New Carlisle. The tie with Penn was followed by a victory over LaVille and a defeat by Clay. A triangular meet with Michigan City and Washington at City saw MHS losing to the Red Devils and defeating the Panthers. Another triangular, with La Porte and Adams, had similar results. Adams trounced the Maroons, but the Maroons defeated LaPorte. The MHS team conquered Central for the second time, but lost to Elkhart. Closing their season, the harriers again placed second in a triangular contest with Goshen and Riley.

Errors, Pitching Woes Fell Batsmen

Senior hurler Tom Baiz demonstrates his pitching form in the St. Joseph game. The Maroons crushed the Indians, 11-1.

Plagued with early season pitching woes, the '67 MHS baseball team dropped to a 6-16 record. Problems with the battery were evident from the beginning of the season. In Mishawaka's opening game against Adams, a second-inning catastrophe saw three changes in Mishawaka pitchers as the Eagles scored a total of 11 runs on three walks and six hits. Although the Maroons held their opponent scoreless through the remainder of the contest, they could bolster only one run themselves. The final score of the opening game was 11-1.

After handing defeats to Buchanan and Goshen, the diamond-men entered a double-header against Penn which turned out to be the hitting-duel of the season. Led by senior hurlers, Tom Baiz and Bill Milliken, the batsmen whipped Penn 16-4 in the first game but found themselves on the short end of a 11-4 score in the second contest.

Often taking the field on unusually cold spring days, Coach John Danaher, in his first year as Varsity Coach, found that the weather often affected his team's ability to handle the ball. The team committed an average of four errors per game.

After smothering St. Joe, 11-1, with a barrage of hits and near-perfect pitching in a mid-season game, the batsmen slumped into a seven game losing stretch. Rounding out their schedule with victories, the team gained revenge for their poor showings earlier by defeating Marian in two consecutive games, 9-8, and 2-0.

Key Injuries Hurt

The 1968 basketball season was an unlucky one for MHS. Able to win only three games, the luckless Maroons lost many close contests.

Hoosier Hysteria began early for the Maroons as their first game went into overtime. Unfortunately visiting Plymouth edged MHS 48-45.

St. Joe downed the Maroons, 64-44, the following week. In a close contest, South Bend Jackson defeated the MHS cagers 71-67. MHS was then downed 71-60 by Marion on their home court.

Although they had the tallest team in the NIC, South Bend Riley was unable to stop the Maroons. The MHS cagers were accurate on their home court as they downed the visiting Wildcats, 61-53.

Arch rival Penn proved to be a little too lively for Mishawaka as they edged their traditional rival, 65-63, after a hotly contested battle on the winner's court. The Elkhart Blazers dominated MHS in a 59-41 win.

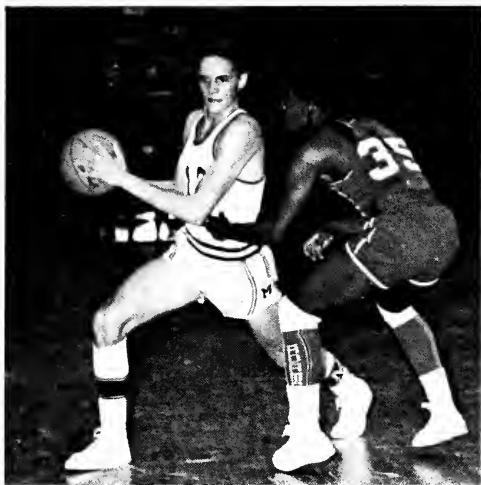

In tourney action, MHS fared a little better. The starting five from MHS were determined to win the Warsaw Tourney as they smashed Hobart, 82-70, in the first contest. Plans for victory were fouled, however, as host Warsaw squeaked by the Maroons, 75-67, in the championship game.

Joe Jasiewicz Scores 42 at WHS

Back in regular action, S. B. Adams handed Mishawaka a 62-55 defeat. The following game proved to be a big night for Senior forward Joe Jasiewicz. Playing at Washington, Joe broke that school's high game record with 42 points. The old record of 41 was formerly held by Mike Warren of Central. One more basket and Joe would have broken the Mishawaka all-time high game record of 43 held by Rich Witkowski. The cagers gave Ft. Wayne South a real battle the following week but were edged, 56-53.

Injuries to two key players forced Coach Max Eby to substitute. Senior forward Steve Wiseman injured his knee quite severely and was forced out of action for the rest of the season. Senior guard Craig Salyer broke a thumb which sidelined him until sectional time. Senior Tim Bess was also injured.

After losing two key players, seven consecutive losses were added to the cagers' 3-10 record. Michigan City downed the Maroons, 87-59; Logansport stopped MHS, 76-52; and LaSalle mauled the squad 94-49. South Bend Central defeated MHS, 96-84. This defeat followed by LaPorte, 72-61; Muncie South, 82-53; and Goshen, 83-71.

Closing the season, MHS was defeated, 69-49, by South Bend Clay in the opening game of the sectional where Freshman Tom Schnaible gained valuable experience while replacing Salyer.

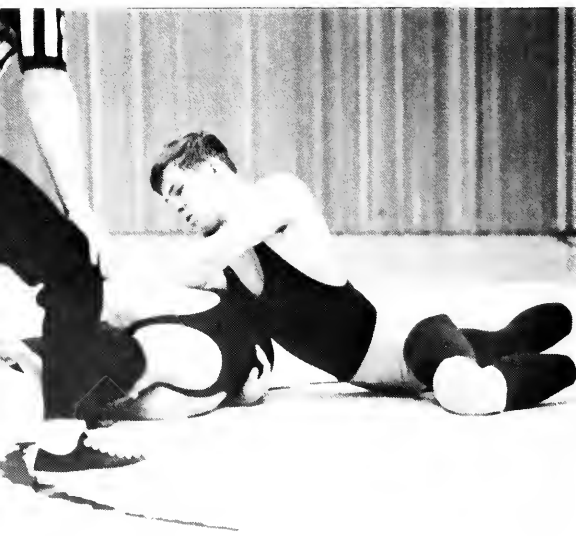

Airborne, Junior Bob Hambright outjumps a Riley defender to slip in two points to contribute to the 61-53 win.

Coach Smith, Aldrich, Firmani, Shoyler, Tuminski, Stillson, Semprini, Coach Karpinski. These matmen led MHS to its first Regional Crown.

Matmen Capture First Regional Title

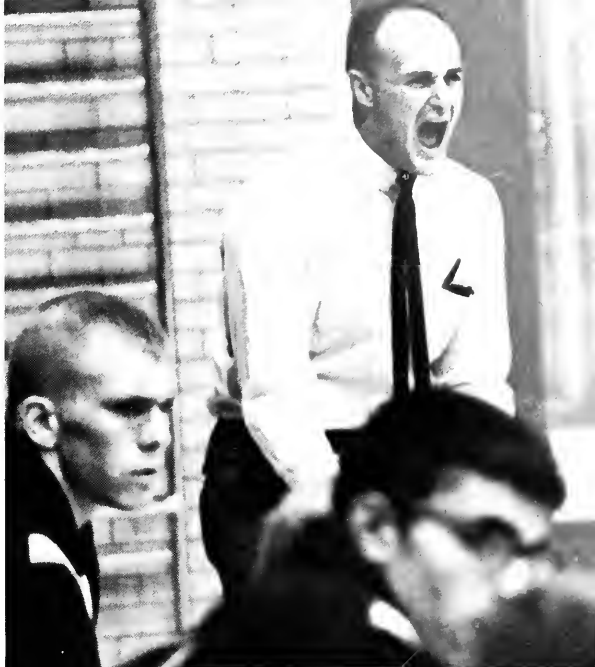

At a home match, Phil Stillson struggles with a Central opponent while the official watches the contest for false moves.

Assisted by Mr. William Karpinski and Mr. James Miller, Coach Al Smith led his team to a season of seven wins and five losses. The determined squad placed first in the Penn Invitational and the regional meet. The B-Team compiled an impressive tally of eight wins and three losses, and the freshman won two of their three contests.

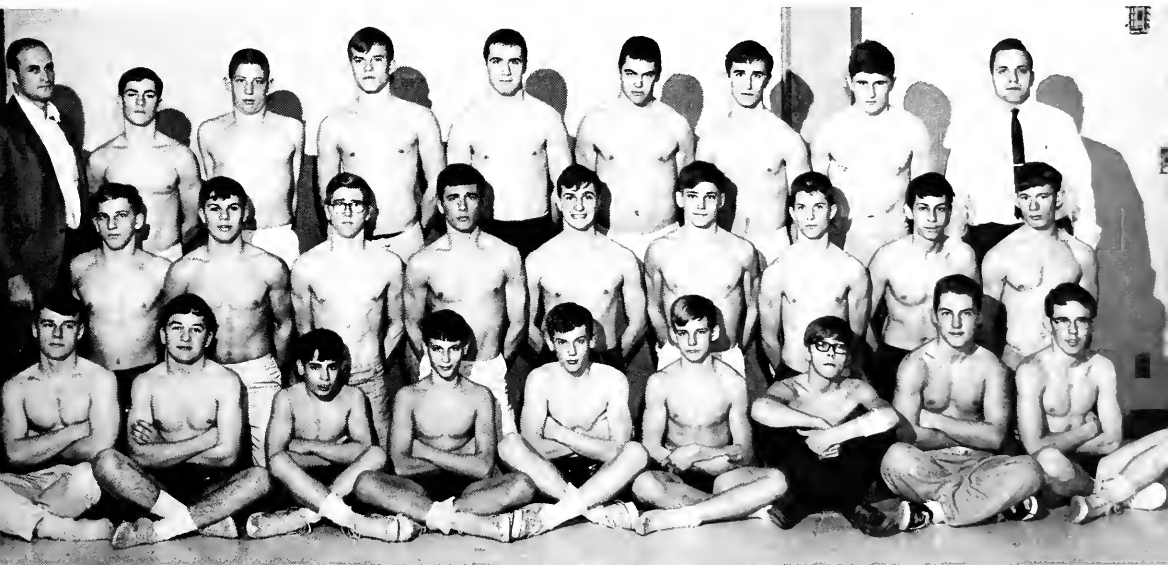

Clay defeated MHS, 27-21, in the season's opener. Able to total only thirteen points against tough MHS wrestlers; LaParte, Jackson, and Adams found this number to be truly unlucky. The grapplers amassed 34, 37, and 33 points, respectively in the contests. A mid-season slump resulted in four successive defeats as the matmen lost to Elkhart, 29-19; Niles, 27-15; and Washington, 25-21. The team squeaked by Riley, 21-20. The grapplers smashed Penn, 37-3, and crushed Michigan City, 53-3. A 35-15 win over Central finished the dual-meet season.

As the season progressed, three individuals emerged as outstanding. Although small, 98-pound Henry Wilk fought his way to an impressive 25-3 record. Henry went on to win the regional and ended his season with a second place in the state meet. In the 123-pound class, Senior George Roelandts took sectional honors for the second straight year. He ended his career with an impressive 22-5 1968 record. Capturing the regional crown, he took fourth place in the state meet. Stopped in the championship bout at the regional, Senior Byron Aldrich wrapped up an extraordinary season. As captain of the team, Byron was undefeated until he was decided at Gary.

A quick exchange from Mike Kuharic to Will Pooley aids the sectional mile relay team in earning a lead over competitors.

Vaulters Set Record;

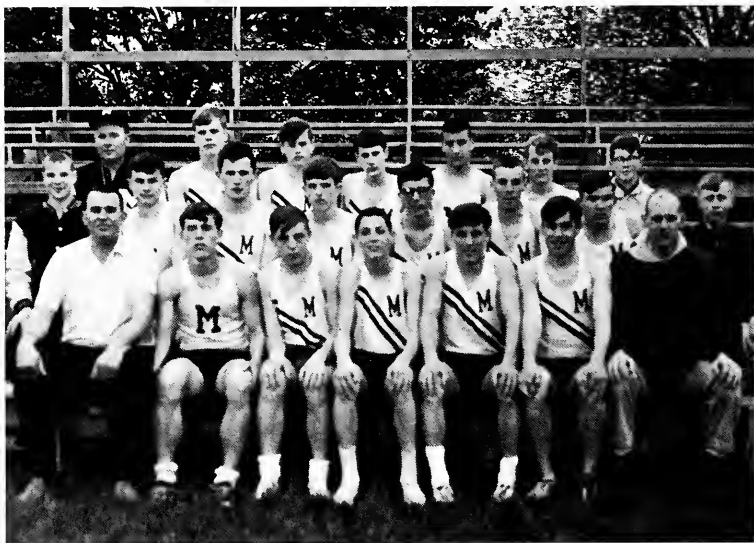

Lacking the skills of experienced lettermen, the 1967 squad managed only a 4-10 record. The season began with four consecutive losses. Sandwiched between two defeats was an 80-38 romp over Nappanee. In the mid-season meets, the cindermen were able to find winning ways once again. In three dual meets the thinlies posted landslide victories over Rolling Prairie, St. Joseph, and Marian.

The season, however, was highlighted by several outstanding individual performances. Excelling in the field events, Seniors Jerry Herron and Jim Doty shared in boosting the school pole vault record to 12' 9½". Sophomore Mike Mammon set a school standard with a clocking of 10:34.4 in the two mile event.

The track team captured a sixth place in the conference by gathering a total of 12½ points. Contributing to the points, Senior Sam Watson placed third and Junior Will Pooley placed fifth in the 440 yard dash. Herron captured fourth in the broad jump and took second place honors in the pole vault. In addition he ran on the fifth place mile-relay team consisting of Watson, Pooley, and Mike Kuharic.

A fourth place in the sectional gained the relay quartet a berth in the regional meet the following week in Gary. Along with the relay, Herron and Doty participated in the pole vault competition and Watson was entered in the 440 event. Success remained with the vaulters as they both placed in the regional to send them downstate.

Juniors Mike Boehnlein and John Gautier tread a familiar path to school after a rigorous practice on the tennis courts.

Often hampered by stinging cold weather and courts flooded with rain water, the 1967 tennis team broke even with a 5-5 record. The squad also earned a 3-5 tally in conference play. For the first time in school history, the team coached by Mr. Jerry Shaw, was composed entirely of underclassmen. Aided by two returning lettermen, Juniors John Gautier and Mike Boehnlein, the racketmen blanked Riley and Central with twin scores of 7-0 and also posted victories over Penn, Washington, and Jackson High Schools. The tennis squad earned second place honors in the sectional competition. The doubles team, John Gautier and Mike Boehnlein, defeated all sectional opponents to compete in the regional matches.

Under the leadership of Coach Walter Ross and Captain Dennis Aguirre, the swim team swam to another winning season with an 8-6 record. Possessing an unusual amount of depth, the tankmen posted first-time victories over Washington and Riley. The season was highlighted by three new school records, a third place title in the conference meet, and a diver in state competition. In the final meet of the season, Joe Whitt found success twice against the Goshen opponents. Whitt swam the 200-yard freestyle event in a record-setting time of 2:00.1. Whitt easily outdistanced his competitors by breaking the 400-yard freestyle record with a time of 4:21.3. The MHS 400-yard freestyle relay team consisting of Dennis Aguirre, Jim Mannis, Larry McCay, and Whitt upended another record with a clocking of 3:42. Diver John Waelbrouck qualified to represent the tankmen in the state one-meter spring board diving event.

M-Men Boost Football Program Sales

The Freshman Football team ended their year with an unusual 3-4-1 record. The scheduled game with Central was cancelled when the Bears did not have enough players to form a team. A 46-12 mauling of Penn, sparked the season. The Cavemen also blanked LaPorte, 12-0 and LaSalle, 24-0.

With a 6-13 record, the Freshman Basketball squad fared little better than their varsity and B-Team counterparts. The team's efforts were impaired when regular starters Tom Schnaible and Gary Gautier were transferred to the B-team and varsity squads. The squad managed victories over only three teams of the ten opponents on their roster. These victories included three wins over Marian, two over Jackson, and a single defeat over St. Joseph.

The M-Men's Club was sponsored by Mr. John Danaher for the second consecutive year. Among the club's activities were the annual sale of football programs at all home games and the building of a homecoming float. For the first time since 1963, a white sweater award was made to Byron Aldrich who earned three letters in each of three different sports. Only six white sweaters had previously been awarded in the school's history.

The athletic council planned sports programs, approved letter awards, and appropriated funds to various sporting activities. The group included representatives from all major sport areas.

Taking a short breather, B-Team Cheerleaders Terry Swodener, Amy Boozer, Ellen Nowicki, Jill Falkenau, and Judy Haldren get together for a group picture between cheers.

Cheer Squad, GAA

The Girls' Athletic Association found a new spirit in their 39th year of existence. Once again the members met fourth hour every Tuesday and Thursday under the guidance of Mrs. Louise Gould.

Not all of the activities of the GAA took place in the gym. When not engaged in competition among themselves, the girls participated in area schools' organized tournaments. Two singles teams and one doubles team were also entered into the State Badminton Tournament.

All GAA activities were backed by money earned through the sales of maroon T-shirts and the operation of a coat-check room during basketball season.

This year the varsity cheerleading squad was expanded to include seven senior members. For the second year, mascot Julie Werbrouck joined the varsity squad. Aided by both the freshmen and B-team squads, the cheerleaders planned pep sessions, painted spirit-boosting signs, and sponsored bus trips to area games. To invent new cheers and to perfect gymnastic formations, the girls practiced three nights a week.

Finding warm, rain-and-snow proof outfits during football season that allowed flexible movement taxed the ingenuity of the girls and sponsor, Mrs. Louise Gould.

GAA members sell T-shirts in the main hall in order to earn money to expand club activities and to buy awards.

Boost Sports Spirit, Enthusiasm

GAA officers pause for an informal snapshot before a planning session with sponsor, Mrs. Louise Gould. Their activities include a volleyball tournament and table tennis matches.

Varsity cheerleaders Janis Craok, Lori Eiswald, Jane Zimmerman, Mary Ann Pechi, Nonette Schnaible, Debbie Werbruck, and Mary

Rhaode practice a difficult pyramid formation made possible this year by enlarging the squad to include seven members.

Personalities

A glance down the halls of Mishawaka High School showed that the students of 1968 were different from those of previous years. This was the year of short plaid kilts, huge wrist watches, wide-track striped shirts, octagon heels, pant dresses, over-the-knee socks, hair falls, square-toed shoes, and chain belts. But fashion was not the only thing that set the MHS'ers of 1968 apart. The attitude and behavior of the student body were more serious and more mature than ever before. The Class of 1971 adjusted themselves to MHS with poise and maturity while upperclassmen displayed classroom concentration to meet college or job requirements. But students also had fun. School clubs and activities met after school to plan for floats, dances, and banquets while week-ends were filled with dates and parties.

Dr. Robert R. Freeman, in his first year as superintendent, has tried to make "a good school system better." Throughout the year, Dr.

Freeman maintained a policy of an efficiently run school system. Dr. Freeman is interested in students as well as the administration.

Dr. Freeman Becomes Superintendent

Dr. Robert R. Freeman has assumed the duties of Superintendent of the Mishawaka Public School System since the retirement of Dr. John J. Young in June of 1967. A native Hoosier, Dr. Freeman was Superintendent in Menominee, Michigan for two years before coming to Mishawaka. Prior to that appointment, Dr. Freeman taught in Bloomington and in Indianapolis.

Dr. Freeman attended Butler University, San Jose College, and Indiana University where he received his doctorate in 1964. In addition to his scholastic achievements, Dr. Freeman is also active in civic and service organizations. Dr. Freeman is married and is the father of two elementary school age boys, Robin, who is in the fourth grade, and Timothy, who is in the first grade. He is a Rotarian, a Scottish Rite Mason, and a member of many professional educational organizations throughout the state.

To familiarize himself with Mishawaka High School, Dr. Freeman met with department heads, faculty members, and student leaders to discuss curriculum needs, and to anticipate problems. Often called upon as a main speaker at MHS activities, Dr. Freeman built a reputation as a speaker students liked to hear.

Dr. Freeman takes time from his busy schedule to pose for a formal picture with his wife and sons, Timothy and Robin.

Dr. Freeman and family begin decorating the Christmas tree as the Yuletide approaches. This is a tradition in the Freeman household.

After speaking at the National Honor Society induction in the fall, Dr. Freeman talks with proud parents.

Deans Check Students' Appearances

Mr. Lowell Yaw, Assistant Superintendent, handles the financial end of the Mishawaka Schools and assists Superintendent Freeman.

Assistant Principal Thomas Rice has the job of controlling club budgets, and he assists in making class schedules.

School Board members Mr. Andrew Plodawski, Mr. Delmer Anderson, Mr. Richard Schiffer, Mr. Robert Schallial, Superintendent Freeman, and Mrs. Laverne Speiser, watched closely the activities of the various schools in the school system.

Mr. Thurston Accepts New Position

Marking his last year at Mishawaka High, Principal Walter E. Thurston was promoted to Assistant Superintendent while continuing his policy of school improvement. Changes included remodeling the chemistry and physics labs and replacing the stationary desks, except those in Room 138, with modern, plastic-topped desks. The business education department received some new typewriters and some new desks. Mr. Thurston stated that there is a good chance that a new addition will be added to the vocational wing. Such courses as barbering, auto mechanics, and some advanced art courses may be added to the curriculum.

Concurring with Dr. Freeman, Mr. Thurston believes that the departmental meetings have had great value. As a regular part of the school day, Mr. Thurston schedules meetings with school leaders, attends departmental meetings, and visits classrooms to observe students and teachers. Mr. Thurston always tries to take an active part in school activities.

Other administration duties, shared by Mr. Rice, Assistant Principal, Miss Wilson, Dean of Girls, and Mr. Dykstra, Dean of Boys, included checking student conduct and helping students with any academic or personal problems. The two deans also had control over various other activities. Such things as vehicle registration and the scheduling of special extra-curricular activities fell under their jurisdiction.

Principal Walter E. Thurston was proud of the accomplishments of this years' four classes and took pride in their able leadership.

Contralling school dress and the attitudes of Mishawaka girls keeps Miss Lynetta Wilson, Dean of girls, quite busy.

Mr. Eugene Dykstra, Dean of Boys, listened to many student excuses as to why they were tardy or why they were marked absent.

Class of '68 Greets Its Senior Year

Vice President Josiewicz discusses Commencement plans with other class officers President Marks, Secretary Reynolds, and Treasurer Notali.

The class of '68 was the smallest graduating class in four years, numbering only 380. Because of their small size, seniors had to yield the traditional main hall lockers and large sponsor rooms to other classes, but they yielded their role of leadership to no one. The seniors' first display of talent was the homecoming float, "Whale of a Team," which captured first prize for originality. November was filled with rehearsals and the production of the class play, Harvey. The comedy starred a six-foot rabbit pooka. With English source themes completed, seniors enjoyed Christmas vacation as the first real break in the academic year. The holidays ended far too soon, however, as students returned to final exams. At the close of the semester, six mid-term students left the class to become MHS alumni.

The spring thaws brought thoughts of graduation and decisions about the future. Students planning for college filed applications and took entrance exams, while others sought information and counseling about employment and military service. In May, seniors attended the 1968 Prom as guests of the juniors and took their last final exams at MHS. After the Class Day Assembly, they left for a two-week vacation before Commencement on June 5. The Class of '68 began a new tradition at MHS by graduating in maroon caps and gowns and retained an old one by voting for a baccalaureate service.

Wrapping gay packages for Christmas was among the many new experiences in America for Suhaila Shamsuddin, AFS student from Malaysia.

During half time activities, newly crowned homecoming queen Diana Roberts flashes a happy smile at her escort Mark Hildebrand.

1968 Honor Roll Boasts 59 Names

Planning the second semester National Honor Society induction, President Carol Nix writes down suggestions from former president Craig Salyer.

Because some seniors failed to make or keep photograph appointments, their picture could not be included in the senior section. Graduating seniors whose pictures do not appear are Ron Brooks, Michael Campbell, Terry Canwoy, Diane Cressler, Robert Culp, Terry DeMoegd, Gory Derbin, Clara Eberlein, Tom Eberlein, Steve Egen-doerfer, Larry Gee, Francis Grisham, Jeff Hensley, Paul Hupp, Richard Kunkle, Pamela Leslie, Bill Lyvers, John Martino, Tom Nelson, Richard Putz, Michael Rigdon, Evo Shelton, William Slates, Alan Stafford, Robert Stewart, Victor Tavares, Greg Traeger. Some of the seniors whose pictures appear withdrew from school or for some other reason did not graduate.

Junior officers Steve Brainerd, Cassie Stringer, Steve Watts, and Dave Hardisty discuss rings early with Mr. Thurston.

Mark Hoffman and Louie Woodward entertain at the Miskodeed skit, while Junior Miskodeeders partray "flower children" in the background.

Juniors Invade 'Senior Territory'

Upon returning in the fall, the junior class found their lockers in the main hall, which in past years had traditionally been "senior territory."

In October, the class elected six classmates to represent them—Steve Watts, president; Steve Brainerd, vice president; Cassie Stringer, secretary; and Dave Hardisty, treasurer. Mark Hoffman and Greg Kuharic were chosen Board of Control members. Teresa Anderson and Nancy Nelson were voted as Junior attendants in the Homecoming Court. Disappointed that the Homecoming parade had to be cancelled because of rain, the girls enjoyed their half-time convertible-ride more.

Those who could get the car, or were lucky enough to have their own, drove to games and to the "Centre" dances afterward. Juniors ordered their rings in February and received them in June, two months earlier than previous upperclassmen had.

Juniors spent many hours perfecting lines and searching for properties to make their class play a success. Money earned from the play provided funds for the prom. In the spring students running for a Student Council office campaigned throughout the school by putting up posters and wearing tags. Each candidate gave his campaign speech in an "A" and "B" assembly to present his ideas to the student body. Juniors from the upper 5% of the class were surprised and proud as they were inducted into National Honor Society.

Sophomores Join More Activities

The class of 1970 found this year to be an in-between year. As second-year Cavekids, they were no longer baffled by the routine of MHS. Sophomores could not enjoy upperclass privileges such as going to the prom or electing class officers, but they participated in clubs and sports and voiced their opinions in activities.

Steve Baker was elected to represent his class on the Board of Control and Marcia Mondich was selected to be a Homecoming attendant for the Queen's court. While three girls were B-team cheerleaders, several sophomore boys worked hard to make varsity teams.

College-bound students studied hard on geometry theorems and foreign languages while others started vocational training in Machine Shop I and bookkeeping to help prepare them for professions of their choice after graduation. Many found developmental reading a challenge while trying to increase their speed reading and vocabularies at the same time. All scheduled physical education to keep physically fit. This was the year of experimenting to find the "real person" beneath the "kid" exterior. But mostly it was a year of waiting to become an upperclassman, a junior.

Becky Cook yells excitedly as the bus pulls away after the Elkhart football game. Bus trips provided transportation for many underclassmen.

Freshmen Adjust to New MHS Routine

Swimming Instructor Karen Galinowski teaches a freshman the correct method of diving. Many freshmen and sophomores substituted swimming for gym class.

Students from six area junior high schools with varied hobbies and interests apprehensively joined together to form the class of 1971. Knowing their own grade school friends, they made new friends from other areas. The freshmen banded together to escape the intimidations by the upperclassmen such as inducements to purchase elevator tickets to study hall 3FC.

The newness of being a freshman soon waned as they learned to budget their time for studies and to adjust to new class schedules. Each student learned to cope with the crowded MHS halls.

They learned the fundamentals of algebra and discovered the symbolism in DAVID COPPERFIELD. The more ambitious students studied foreign languages while others taking citizenship made career notebooks.

Freshmen actively participated in school activities by joining Student Council, Hi-Y, Y-Teens, and the language clubs. They found the Share Project a worthwhile undertaking. The Class of 1971 was also well represented at pep sessions. They eagerly yelled as they tried to win the class battle cry although they always lost to seniors, traditional winners. Having their own cheerleaders for the second year, they helped mold another MHS tradition.

As the year passed, the frosh soon got into the fast pace set at MHS. Many anticipated selling those elevator passes to members of the Class of 1972.

Faces, Events Foretell Future

Principal Walter E. Thurston discusses the duties and responsibilities of his job with his successor, Frank F. Firmani.

In the early spring, MHS students staged a talent show to earn $1800 for carpeting for the library. Seniors Jim Locke, Tony Marondo, Bob Mead, Don Nicolini, Denny Cockowski, and Jim Shown rehearse their version of "Officer Krupke."

Acknowledgements

The 1968 Miskodeed staff soon found that it takes more than 19 dedicated staffers to produce a Miskodeed. Our special thanks go to Mr. Richard Kennard of Newsfoto Publishing Company for his advice on layout; Mr. Jack Bundy and the S. K. Smith Company for making our cover; and Mr. Edward Andros for taking and printing many of our group pictures. We also appreciate the assistance of the English and sponsor teachers who helped with underclass pictures; Mr. Edward Fleming and the stage crew who set up the background for many of our pictures; and the Student Council members who helped with the subscription drives. We are especially grateful to Mr. Lawrence Kelly for providing us with paint, brushes, and rollers for our Saturday morning "paint-in." The staff thanks Art Editor Linda Farbess for designing the cover and Art Editor Margie Hesch for drawing the divider pages. Staffers also give three cheers to photographers Dan Nicolini, Tom Tkach, and Mark Winiarz.

Early in the spring, MHS seniors were grieved at the loss of their classmates, Tim Farr and Mrs. Cheri Frazier Fredrick.

Versatile Staff Completes Frantic Year

Will Pooley examines several track pictures carefully before attempting to write accurate and interesting cutlines.

Peggy Huff finds a proportion wheel to be a valuable aid in cropping Student Life pictures to fit the layouts.

The 1968 Miskodeed staff has tried to show this year as it really was. For Mishawaka High School it was a year of progress and innovation. For the Miskodeed staff it was a year of frantic work and memorable experiences. Sometimes we were all on the verge of resigning, then someone would refill the cookie jar, and we would decide things weren't so bad after all. While working late on deadline nights, we established a well-worn path to Cline's to get cokes and candy bars. Celebrating Miss Eberle's and 19 staffers' birthdays kept the girls busy baking cakes and washing our plastic "silverware." Creative talents were tested when we were faced with the task of turning a dirty, dark, windowless room into a bright, cheerful place to work. After it was scrubbed and painted, the room looked less dreary. Bright bulletin board displays designed by staff members created a humorous atmosphere. Just before Christmas we got a new door with a genuine glass window in it. We were no longer a closet! We solved our storage problem by piling everything we wanted to keep on top of our cupboard. But all of our time was not spent on interior decorating. We wrote and rewrote copy. We took pictures, cropped pictures, and berated pictures. We organized sales campaigns. We alphabetized cards, indexes, and underclass pictures. We tried to instruct the junior staff. The concoction of a Miskodeed isn't easy, but it was well worth the effort to have the opportunity to show how "the old order changeth, yielding place to new."

Hoping for a little "inspiration" while writing faculty copy, Denny Cackowski reaches deep into the almost empty cookie jar.

Kurt
To a real nut
in the Prog store.
Good luck at W.H.S. and in anything you do.
